He Hit a Horse.
Her Name? Violet.
Mumbling in Washington.
Peace Club for Europe.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

BARSTOW, Cal., April 27. JUST WEST of Isleta, "Little Island," on the west bank of the Rio Grande, in New Mexico, the engineer of this fast train, "The Chief," stopped suddenly. A brakeman said:

"I guess he hit something."

Two of the train crew walked back and, far down the straight track, lighted a brilliant red flare, warning any oncoming train. Twenty minutes later they came trotting back, their red lanterns swinging, flare still blazing. One of them said:

"Just a big horse. I guess the engineer knew what he hit. He knocked it onto the other track, we pulled it off. It's all right."

Then he added:

"You have to be sure they're dead. Sometimes after you go they will crawl back onto the track. Funny, isn't it?"

JUST THERE the railroad passes through a reservation occupied by eleven hundred Indians. "Very industrious horticulturists and agriculturists," the Santa Fe book calls them, and tracks are not fenced in, for there are few cattle.

Occasionally "a big horse" gets on the track. The railroad will pay for the one killed, and the grief-stricken Indian will be able to buy two more.

LEAVING ARIZONA, the train "coasts" down hill thirty miles and stops at Needles, Cal., where Indian ladies, substantially built, offer bows and arrows, of painted wood, necklaces and purses of beads. Their salesmanship talk is limited to "buy one." Like the fates, they approach you in threes, and you must buy three, or face two, disappointed.

Those ladies, with blue streaks painted downward from the lower lip to the chin, are normal in every way, broad and heavy as they should be. Asked about how many children she has one replies:

"O, about a dozen."

They wear dresses touching the ground, long brightly colored shawls.

THE YOUNG daughter of one Indian lady is there, "just to see the train come in." Laughing, joking with the train crew, she has none of her mother's solemnity, and how different in dress, short sleeves, bobbed hair, white shoes, little pink socks above them, bare legs that "need no sun tan."

You ask her name, expecting to hear at least "Laughing Water," or "Dancing Fawn." And she replies:

"Violet McKenzie, aged 13, junior high."

That would break Longfellow's heart.

When you ask the stolid mother what she thinks of her daughter's costume, she replies, "Socks too cold," and says no more.

BY THE WAY, stop at Needles some day when you go through, a fine bustling town of 4,000 that gets its name from mountain peaks, seven miles away, discovered and named by Fremont in 1850.

You will see there the biggest ice plant on the desert, an important outfitting place for gold miners, plenty of things worth while to see for miles about.

THE UNITED STATES people will learn little by little what all the muttering and mumbling is about. Faces of foreign gentlemen, as they leave, will tell us something.

David Lawrence suggests a plan to concentrate all gold UNCLE SAM'S INCLUDED, in an international bank in Switzerland. Then "the legal ratio (back of paper money issued) could be reduced to 20 per cent."

UNCLE SAM could then imagine himself on the gold basis, presumably, although he wouldn't have any gold. And Mr. Stalin, of Russia, when he got around to it, with his airplane fleet sufficiently developed, might set out through the air, headed for Switzerland, with an object worth while.

WHY CANNOT the United States attend to its own money, its own gold reserve, its own air fleet, its OWN BUSINESS generally?

What was the accursed germ injected into the Democratic party by Woodrow Wilson that makes it always look to other countries to settle America's affairs? It is to be hoped that President Roosevelt will find an anti-toxin or prophylactic, or something, for that germ.

BRITAIN EVIDENTLY expects substantial good to come of MacDonald's visit, not merely "friendly talk" but GOOD CASH RESULTS.

The British budget for 1933-34, as presented to the House of Commons, leaves out any provision for paying anything to America.

Under the debt agreement which scaled down obligations, England should pay to Uncle Sam in the coming year $193,000,000, at the present rate of exchange amounting to 51 million pounds.

IF PREMIER MacDONALD can talk us out of that, as other intelligent foreigners have talked us out of other things, England will be much obliged.

On the other hand, the British budget provides for a substantial reduction in the tax on British beer, which will seem much wiser to Britons than sending good money to the United States.

Under its present budget arrangement England will have 1,291,000 pounds left over, after [illegible]om the workers a burden of 14,000,000 pounds in beer taxes. This country will have a heavy deficit, something approaching poverty. The last

House Snarled on Beer After Surprise Senate Vote

MAUG LEADS PEN BREAK

F. R. DENIES AGREEMENT ON DEBTS

Willing to Consider Revision Following Economic Parley

Developments in economic situation:

1—White House denies any agreement for debt settlement or postponement of June 15 payments, but reveals President Roosevelt is willing to consider debt revision following world economic conference.

2—Representative Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, introduces petition to force House to vote on cash payment of veterans' bonus.

3—Senator Reed and other Republican leaders resume assault on inflation bill.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — (AP.) — President Roosevelt is willing to consider war debt revision after the world economic conference, but it was emphasized authoritatively today at the White House that he has entered into no agreement for postponement of the June 15 payments or laid down any plan of debt settlement.

Simultaneously, at the State Department, Secretary Hull indicated to reporters that a world truce on tariffs pending convening of the London conference in June is under consideration and that the United States is favorably inclined toward it.

PARLEY AWAITED

As for future war debt revision, hints were dropped at the White House that this subject might be gone into considerably at the conclusion of the world economic parley, which convenes June 12.

Meanwhile, it was said, the President still expects the June 15 payments to be made.

Of course, after further conversations with the debtor nations now in progress, some adjustment may be worked out for the June

BEER FIGHT MOVES TO HOUSE

Bill Snarled Again After Sudden Senate Vote

Developments in the Legislature at Harrisburg today included these:

BEER CONTROL—The McClure (Delaware) beer licensing bill, giving County Treasurers authority to license wholesalers and retailers, passed first reading in the House after the Senate approved it 35 to 8.

RELIEF MEASURES—Gov. Pinchot is conferring with Senator Harry B. Scott, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee in an effort to straighten out tangled legislation.

Additional news of the Legislature on pages 8 and 9.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 27.—The Senate today passed the McClure beer regulation bill 35 to 8.

There were no negative votes from Allegheny County.

Action on the bill today came as a surprise, and represented a reversal of strategy adopted last night after the Senate had debated the bill, in and out of committee, for hours.

The House Law and Order Committee reported the bill as committed. It automatically passed first reading.

The same confusion which obtained in the Senate marked the conduct of the House when it received the bill. Chairman Harry B. Himes asked permission for his committee to meet during the session of the House. Representative Clinton A. Sowers, author of the first and vetoed beer bill, objected, and there was turmoil about the floor.

SURPRISE MOVE

The surprise move in the Senate came after many senators had gone home, and others declared their intention of doing so. However, John J. McClure canvassed the situation this morning, discovered that more senators than he believed would stay had remained over, and decided to jam the measure through before it could be subject to any more amendments.

The bill allows county treasurers to license wholesalers and retailers. Other provisions are:

Bars prohibited, but sale of 3.2 beverages allowed over lunch counters which have 10 tables and 300 square feet of floor space.

Brewers licensed at $100 by the State Alcohol Permit Board.

SENATE IN UPROAR

In yesterday's battle the Senate had become embroiled bitterly as it fought over amendments. Wets and drys on both sides of nearly every question. Grumpy senators, Martin senators and senators who are loyal to other factional leaders snarled about the floor and in committee rooms.

The McClure (Allegheny) bill, imposing a tax of $1.24 a barrel on beer, already has passed the House, 160 to 2. It will come up for final passage next week in the Senate.

How Convicts Escaped on Crude Rope

HOW FOUR LONG-TERM CONVICTS, TWO UP FOR MURDER, ESCAPED THE PENITENTIARY

FOUR ESCAPED CONVICTS . . . . . IF YOU SEE ANY ONE CALL THE NEAREST POLICEMAN!

RELATIVES OF KILLER ARRESTED AFTER BOLT OF FOUR DOWN WALL

John Maug, mob leader and slayer of Vernon (Port) Moses, Ross Township constable, was making criminal history again today.

With Edward Turpack, a member of his mob of desperadoes, Maug led two other prisoners over the rooftops of Western Penitentiary in a daring and successful dash for liberty early today.

The latter two fugitives, Theodore Joseph Geisler and Freddie Prince, known as the "pock-marked bandit," were reported by city detectives to have been seen in East Liberty at 7 o'clock this morning, four or five hours after their get-away. Later they were said to have been seen in Oakmont.

Prince was wearing overalls, a blue coat and black hat, detectives said they learned.

MAUG'S KIN ARRESTED

Maug's mother, Mrs. Ida Maug Rothermel, 116 West Erie street; her son, Thomas, 17; her daughter, Mrs. Edna Friedel, and Eleanor Stemmler, were arrested and held as suspicious persons. Maug's sweetheart, Gladys Jackson, of 1225 Howard street, was questioned and released.

Prison officials disclosed that Maug's mother and his two sisters, Helen and Freda, had visited Maug Tuesday.

A letter to Mrs. Friedel, alias Mrs. Edna Byrnes, was intercepted, detectives said. It was mailed in Monessen and purported to have come indirectly from Maug, apparently to pave the way for future communications after the escape.

Fearing Maug and Turpack, given life terms by Judge George V. Moore, might attempt vengeance, police were detailed to guard the jurist's home in Zara street, Knoxville.

The escape of the four was discovered shortly after 5 a. m., soon after the night guard had been changed.

supposed to have been shut in their cells for the night, Maug led his desperadoes over the chapel roof to the cornice of the high walls of the prison.

From there they lowered themselves to the ground, a distance of 80 feet, with a crudely fashioned rope woven of "warp," a substance used in the weaving shop of the prison. The rope was wrapped in electricians' tape.

"DUMMIES" AID ESCAPE

Although it was believed they were at liberty within the prison walls most of the night, their disappearance was concealed by four "dummies" in their beds, fashioned of trousers, shoes and blankets.

Maug and Turpack were committed to prison in January, 1933, to serve life terms and 60 to 120 years for murder and highway robbery.

Prince was committed December 15, 1932. He was arrested in his Mt. Lebanon apartment after a series of robberies of gasoline service stations and drug stores. He was to serve 15 to 30 years.

Geisler was serving a sentence of from 20 to 40 years for robbery. He was committed April 30, 1930.

On the theory the four convicts may have secreted themselves near the prison, police scout car crews searched a dozen empty houses in the neighborhood.

State police, of Butler, joined in the hunt in the city and other

BONUS TANGLES INFLATION BILL

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—One bonus move was deferred in the House and another sprang up there today as the Senate talked its way toward a vote on the gold content section of the inflation bill as a preliminary to action on the veterans' payment proposal.

Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, author of the bonus measure in the House, agreed to withhold a petition for a Democratic caucus pending a vote in the Senate on the amendment of Senator Robinsin (Rep.), of Indiana, calling for payment of the bonus out of the $3,000,000,000 of Treasury notes the inflation bill would authorize the President to issue.

Almost immediately Representative Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, announced that he was not concerned about whether the President would be embar-

Harlem Club Closed, Monaca Runs On

The Harlem Club, black and tan hot spot in Fullerton street, is closed today, heralding wholesale closings of Pittsburgh's night life haunts in preparation for the coming mayoralty campaign, according to political wise men.

Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide said the club had been closed temporarily late yesterday pending an investigation into its reported violation of the closing hour regulation. At the same time it was learned he had given a "valid" permit to the Monaca Club, which has been operating a cabaret across from Oakland Police Station for the last few weeks.

The dimming of the Harlem Club's lights was quietly effected by holding up its permit, McQuaide said in promising investigations of several other clubs. The Leuderman brothers, Davey and Johnny, reputed proprietors, were in conference with the police head yesterday.

All police captains today were ordered by McQuaide to make a "detailed and thorough" report on all cabarets in their districts.

HILL DEPUTIES FOUND GUILTY

Deputy constables Abe Feldman and Hyman Shalansky, who had threatened a wholesale "cleanup" of speakeasies in the Fifth Ward, were found guilty of larceny today in Criminal Court.

A new trial was at once asked from Judge Ivan K. McKenrick of Cambria County, and they were admitted to $2,500 bail pending a hearing. In the meantime, the court ordered them to suspend all their activities as constables.

The charges against them involved the alleged removal by them of $20 worth of merchandise from the store of Samuel Rutkin of 2420 Murray avenue, after the constables had served a landlord's warrant and levied on the goods, December 22, 1932.

'New Deal' Trade Revival Started, Banker Asserts

The weight of Fred I. Kent's opinion that President Roosevelt already has aided American business through his monetary program was brought to the National Foreign Trade convention today.

The address of the exchange comptroller of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was added evidence of the trend of American business toward a revival under the "new deal."

As the convention here opened its second general session, these were the outstanding points in the program of the nation's business leaders:

1. An aggressive movement for the revival of trade.

2. Expressions of confidence

ARBUCKLE HEIRS LOSE U. S. SUIT

Two North Side sisters today lost their suit to recover $10,000,000 from the federal government.

The Misses Margaret and Martha Jamison, heirs to the huge fortune built through Arbuckle Brothers, learned that the Federal Court in New York had dismissed their suit to recover moneys paid on income and profits derived from the coffee and sugar importing business between 1913 and 1923.

The sisters are daughters of Mrs. Catherine A. Jamison, whose estate distributed four years ago, paid each of them $4,450,000. The sisters reside at 602 Sherman avenue, North Side.

Another Heavy Frost Due Here Tonight

Another heavy frost is forecasted tonight by the Weather Bureau. The temperature will be between 30 and 35 degrees. Last night a killing frost blanketed Pittsburgh as the mercury dipped to an official low record of 32.

The cold wave is expected to pass this district tonight, with slowly rising temperature for tomorrow.

REYNOLDS HEIR PAWN IN SUIT

Guardian is arrayed against guardian, with little Anne Cannon Reynolds II, first child of Zachary Smith Reynolds, mysteriously slain young tobacco multimillionaire, as the pawn and millions as the stake.

The Cabarrus Trust Company, one of the guardians of the child, is seeking to have the court set aside a $500,000 settlement made by Reynolds when divorced by his first wife, Anne Cannon.

Mrs. Joseph Cannon, grandmother and co-guardian of the child, is opposing the trust company's suit, maintaining it was to the best interests of the child to accept a settlement offered by the Reynolds family which would give Anne an additional $1,500,000.

A like sum — $2,000,000 — has been offered Reynolds' second and posthumous child, the son of Libby Holman Reynolds, former Broadway show girl, the answer revealed.

Munhall Man Hurt In Indiana Bus Crash

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., April 27. — (INS.) — Regis Kinavey, 20, of 1201 Orchard street, Munhall, a passenger on an Indian Trails bus, was injured today when the bus and a truck collided five miles west of here.

BONUS MOVES DEEPEN INFLATION BILL WAR IN CONGRESS

REED RENEWS GOLD CONTENT ATTACK

Reminds Democrats of Sound Money Promise

rassed by the issue and filed a petition to force a vote in the House.

REED RENEWS DRIVE

Debate on the section of the inflation measure which would bestow upon the President authority to lower the gold content of the dollar was resumed today by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, an opponent.

To the gold content also has been attached a proposal which would give the chief executive authority to provide for free coinage of silver if he saw fit.

A limitation on debate was to go into effects on the measure this afternoon and leaders expected to hold the Senate in session until the farm bill, to which the inflation measure has been attached, is put out of the way.

REED OPENS DEBATE

In the Senate, Reed began the fourth day of debate with a plea for elimination of the gold clause with its free silver coinage amendment.

Reed said he was making his motion on behalf of himself and Senator Patterson (Rep.), of Missouri. He argued that if the President were allowed to "debase the currency by lowering the gold content of the dollar or by unlimited coinage of silver no one will dare invest his money because he will not know in what medium he will be repaid."

Reed said the mere pendency of the inflation plan had "practically annihilated" markets for municipal bonds, that no bids had been received for bonds in Syracuse and Boston, that it was practically impossible to sell a municipal bond in New York City.

He added that there was hardly a market for United States bonds in New York except an "artificial market" created by reserve bank purchases.

Senator Byrnes (Dem.), of South Carolina, who helped frame the inflation rider, told Reed the municipal bond market condition he complained of was nothing new, as cities for weeks have urged legislation to permit their bonds to be purchased by the Reconstruction Corporation.

Reed also contended the $3,000,000,000 new currency section would prove disappointing and not raise prices as much as inflationists hoped.

WARNS DEMOCRATS

Reed told Democrats:

"I want to strike this out so you Democrats in 1936 can keep your pledge of sound money.

"Keep this in and you have made a laughing stock of your pledge. You've got here every type of unsound money ever invented, with possibly the exception of wampum and the teeth of the sperm whale used by the Fiji Islanders."

"I don't believe prosperity can be created by legislation. It can be destroyed, but it can't be created."

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, recalled to Reed the long summer months spent in enacting the tariff bill and said that was "artificial stimulation of business," but Reed disagreed.

Beore a vote could be had on the gold clause, Senator Fess, of Ohio, the assistant Republican leader, took the floor to oppose inflation.

Fess said it was not the lack of money, but the lack of the use of that already available which was holding up business. He declared:

"The money available is not at work. It won't be until business improves and labor is employed."

Fess contended only $250,000,000 of the $1,600,000,000 in new bank notes provided under the home loan act had circulated and less than $40,000,000 of the additional $3,000,000,000 authorized under the emergency banking act had been issued. He asserted:

"There is no demand for this new money."

Fess said under present laws the government could issue $5,000,000,000 in Federal Reserve bank notes to "answer any call the business of the country might make." He said:

"The idea that it will be necessary to increase the volume of new currency by new legislation is perfectly absurd."

Motorship Aground, Sends Distress Call

Vets Urged to Forego March on Washington

500,000 Will Join Demonstration, Leaders Say

WASHINGTON, April 27—(AP.)—An appeal to former soldiers not to join in a new bonus march on Washington was issued today by Ernest Albright, of Oklahoma City, who said he commanded the Oklahoma unit of veterans that came to the capital last year.

In a formal statement, approved by Senator Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, and Representatives Patman (Dem.), of Texas, and Rankin (Dem.), of Mississippi, Albright said:

"I urge upon all buddies who are really sincere and want to see the bonus paid, to think carefully before joining any movement which will hurt our cause.

"We will fight for our rights but we will do it in a peaceful manner, through our friends who are in office."

Meanwhile, two former officers of the bonus army called at the White House with proposals for payment of the bonus to unemployed veterans, and said that unless this were done a call probably would be sent out for a new march on Washington.

The pair, Harold B. Foulkrod, of the Legislative Assembly of the Bonus Expeditionary force, and John H. Newlin, its adjutant, arranged a conference with Louis M. Howe, one of the President's secretaries, to present their bonus payment proposal.

It calls for an amendment to the inflation proposal to provide for payment of the bonus to former service men who are out of work.

Foulkrod told newspapermen:

"A half million men will come to Washington unless the administration takes some steps for the relief of the unemployed ex-service men."

He estimated a billion and a half dollars would be necessary to pay the bonus to the veterans out of work.

Corporation Code Sent to Governor

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(AP.)—The two Buckman (Senate) bills revising the rules and regulations for non-profit corporations and for business corporations had been sent to the Governor today.

The measures, passed finally by the House, codify the laws affecting corporations doing business in Pennsylvania.

FRANCE GIVEN BRITISH LOAN

PARIS, April 27.—(INS.)—Great Britain and France have reached a definite agreement whereby Britain will lend this country more than 1,000,000,000 francs (about $40,000,000 at par) to maintain stabilization of French currency, International News Service was informed today on excellent authority.

Prompted by America's abandonment of the gold standard the agreement was negotiated last night by representatives of the Bank of England and the Bank of France.

The money to be placed at France's disposal is part of a large fund Britain maintains in French and British banks to equalize exchange. France, it was said, is depositing 2 per cent treasury bonds as security for the loan.

Proposal to make the loan, it was understood, was made by Britain herself in order to halt speculation causing a rise in the value of the pound sterling in relation to other currencies since the United States went off gold.

MELLON WORKS NEAR TREASURY

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon has an office at his disposal here now where he can overlook the Treasury he directed for a decade.

It's just across Pennsylvania avenue from the columned government structure, but more than twice as high as the three-storied Treasury.

The office is not rented by Mellon himself. It is in the name of Finley & Sheppard, the Finley being David Finley who was assistant to Mellon both when he was Secretary of the Treasury and Ambassador to London.

But it was understood Mellon approved the office suite before it was taken, and approved it chiefly because it afforded the same view of the Washington Monument and the Potomac he enjoyed so many years in the Treasury.

Illinois Beer Bill Signed by Governor

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 27.—(INS.)—The new regulatory beer bill went into effect in Illinois today as the General Assembly prepared for final enactment of a measure providing for a state-wide vote on prohibition repeal June 5.

Gov. Henry Horner signed the beer bill last night, establishing a $50 state license fee for dispensaries and a 2-cents a gallon tax for breweries.

Hugh Gibson Slated For Post in Brazil

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 27.—(AP.)—Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, of the United States, has been transferred to Rio de Janeiro by the Roosevelt administration, it was reported today.

15 dues, but that stage has not been reached.

Secretary Hull said in answer to questions that he did not think Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's special ambassador abroad, had received instructions to propose that a tariff truce be called for on Saturday, when the formal invitations to the London meeting are dispatched to all nations.

DECISION NEAR

At the same time he said this matter as well as other tariff proposals will be gone into thoroughly, and noted it was not impossible that a definite decision on the practicability of a truce would be reached by Saturday.

President Roosevelt conferred today with Prime Minister Bennett, of Canada. Afterwards they issued this joint statement:

"The Prime Minister of Canada and the President have discussed further the program of the world economic conference and related questions of trade policy in which these two neighboring governments have an important and immediate concern.

"They have found this exchange of views very helpful."

Former Premier Herriot of France today was in session here with his experts to study possible revisions in existing French regulations which fix quotas on certain American products entering France.

LONDON SURPRISED

LONDON, April 27.—(INS.)—The semi-official statement from the White House that the United States expects payment of the June 15 foreign debt installments surprised and mystified official circles here today.

Numerous British officials had been sanguine the June installment would be deferred, although several well-informed commentators, remarking on the lack of provisions for payment in the new British budget, have warned payment might be expected.

Hope of modification is still seen here, however, in the expectation President Roosevelt would seek congressional power to deal single-handedly with the debt problem before the date of payment falls due.

FRANCE SILENT

PARIS, April 27. — (INS.) — French government spokesmen withheld comment today on the semi-official announcement that the United States expects payment of the June 15 foreign debt installment.

The cabinet will be obliged to study the situation before any announcement can be made, it was said, and no cabinet meeting will be called to discuss the subject until the United States officially notifies France the payment is expected.

Sentiment in favor of paying the debt has been growing in France in recent weeks.

Anchorage, Alaska, Rocked by Quake

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, April 27.—(AP.)—A heavy earthquake shock of between two to three minutes' duration broke plate glass windows in several stores and swayed buildings here late yesterday. At a number of homes and stores, electric light wire connections were broken.

Earlier in the day, at Dutch Harbor, in the Aleutian Islands, about 1,000 miles southwest of here, a slight earthquake was felt. No damage was reported.

WOLL ASSAILS 5-DAY WEEK PROPOSAL

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(INS.)—The five-day week plan of Secretary of Labor Perkins "would make serfs of American industrial workers," Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, told the House Labor Committee today.

Unlike President Will Green, of the Federation, who approved virtually all of Miss Perkins' proposals except the minimum wage, Woll attacked her suggestions all along the line.

Attacking the minimum wage proposal of Miss Perkins, Woll said labor would be forced to attempt to gain control of the government to get a fair deal. He declared:

"If that be the purpose of this proposed legislation, I know of no more efficient means of furthering the socialization of all industry and of denying every vestige of right for labor to determine its destiny as wage earners through their economic power.

"Labor might well in that event consider massing its power and influence solely in political and revolutionary fields.'

SEES PROSECUTION

Furthermore, asserted Woll, Miss Perkins' proposals "would permit criminal prosecution of those who refused to abide by the findings of the Secretary of Labor, without any opportunity provided for a review by any tribunal, thus denying the workers the right to strike."

Meanwhile a drive for modification of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws as companion legislation to the five-day week proposal was under way today, with the backing of important national business groups.

Spokesmen who favor the modification to permit business combines within limitations, declare the legislation is necessary to make the five-day week plan effective and prevent wage cuts.

TRADE CHIEFS HEARD

The first three business witnesses before the House Labor Committee, now holding hearings on the Black 30-hour week bill, urged modification of the anti-trust laws.

They included President Gerard Swope, of General Electric, who favors creation of trade associations under government supervision to restrain competition and stabilize prices and wages; Meyer Jacobstein, Rochester, N. Y., bank president, and Emmanuel Kaplan, of New York, speaking for the woolen textile industry.

While many leading businessmen have urged modification of the anti-trust laws for three years, Congress has paid little attention to their plea.

BOMB KILLS 3 IN BARBER WAR

RAVENNA, O., April 27.—(INS.)—Three persons were killed and five others were injured here today when a mysterious explosion destroyed the home of Edward Rock, Ravenna barber.

Victims of the blast, believed caused by dynamite, were: Mrs. Rock, wife of the barber; her father, Sylvester Barnes, 80, and Silas Eldridge, 70, retired jeweler and former Portage County Sheriff.

Police said a barber price war or a bootleg feud may have been responsible for the blast. Racketeers of Cleveland were blamed by local police and authorities of that city were asked to aid in the search for the bombers.

Today

three words could be appropriately condensed to SAP.

THE IMPORTANT thing in Europe at present is the effort of Mussolini, in need of time to build up his people and their prosperity, to establish a four-power "club" to compel peace. Italy, France, Germany and England in a four-power pact would guarantee the peace of Europe.

That "club" seems a good idea, with the understanding that this country will not be asked to guarantee or finance it.

Our "best financial minds" are probably sick of making private loans to Europe by this time, and there is only Uncle Sam left. How foolish will he be?

THE "CHINESE Swastika Society" (you wonder what that is, any connection with the German branch?) has contributed 100,000 Chinese dollars, silver, and the Japanese Red Cross has contributed 10,000 yen to earthquake sufferers in Southern California.

Such sincere good feelings is appreciated, but many in California and elsewhere feel that this country, in spite of its troubles, should be able to get along without foreign help.

China especially, with thousands dying of starvation every year, should not contribute to a country in which the most serious problem is how to distribute "too much of everything."

MOONEY TO GET DAY IN COURT

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Thomas J. Mooney will have his day in court.

At least that was the prospect today—barring action before the State Supreme Court by John O'Gara or some other citizen and taxpayer.

Superior Judge Louis H. Ward, in settling the resumption of Mooney's trial for murder for May 22, said he would allow "America's most famous prisoner" to leave his San Quentin Prison cell and come to court here and testify in his own behalf.

Apparently the people, represented by Deputy District Attorney William W. Murphy and associates, will not attempt to prevent Mooney testifying although seeing no necessity for it.

Murphy told Judge Ward yesterday, before the court continued the case because of demonstrations, that he would rest the people's case without evidence or testimony.

It was learned, however, that he proposed to ask the judge to advise the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

DAVIS PLEDGES ARMS AID

GENEVA, April 27.—(AP.)—The United States is fully determined to contribute something to increase international security against war, Norman H. Davis told the steering committee of the World Disarmament Conference today.

The American Ambassador-at-Large urged that the conference continue its sessions without adjournment and concentrate its discussion on actual measures of disarmament.

His declaration reassured the delegates and resulted in the squelching of an incipient movement to adjourn the conference until the nations are ready to declare themselves on vital questions.

CALL STILLMAN AS WITNESS IN MITCHELL CASE

Grand Jury to Quiz Former Financier on Bank's Income

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—James A. Stillman, former president of the National City Bank, was subpenaed today to appear before the federal grand jury which has indicted Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the bank, for alleged evasion of income tax.

At the Federal Building it was indicated that Stillman was to be questioned about data bearing on incomes derived from the National City Bank and National City Company. The Stillman angle of the case was said to be considered of the utmost importance by officials of the United States Attorney's office.

Besides Stillman, who has been out of the National City Bank for many years, ever since his marital affairs were a national sensation, another important witness to go before the federal grand jury today was Harry W. Forbes, a member of the law firm which represents the National City Bank. He had previously refused to answer certain questions on the ground of privilege, but was ordered by a federal judge yesterday to answer.

Utility Magnate's Profits In 1929 Bared by Probe

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Thomas W. Mitchell, examiner-economist, told the Federal Trade Commission today that high market prices achieved by Cities Service Company common stock in the early part of 1929 afforded Henry L. Doherty, utilities magnate, an opportunity to "put his personal affairs in order" and realize a large profit on a portion of his holdings in the company.

CABINET AIDES DRAFT JOB BILL

WASHINGTON, April 27—(AP.)—A cabinet group of four named by President Roosevelt to work out his public works program was called together today to begin drafting the measure which probably will be the last of his major domestic rehabilitation proposals.

Secretary Ickes is chairman, heading Secretaries Dern, Wallace and Perkins.

They plan intensive work to shape the program, which is to be financed under present plans by a bond issue, as quickly as possible.

Secretary Perkins already has specific proposals.

Meanwhile, the House roads committee today decided to defer action on the Almon $200,000,000 federal highway aid construction bill, pending the Roosevelt program.

No figure has as yet been arrived at on the cost of the administration program.

HOUSE SPEEDS MORTGAGE AID

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(INS.)—The House today moved swiftly in considering the administration's $2,400,000,000 home owners' mortgage relief measure. Passage is expected this afternoon.

The right of debate was limited, but "gag rule" was not invoked, and the measure was left open to amendment.

The bill provides for the government taking over mortgages on homes valued up to $15,000 and giving the original mortgage holder government bonds of the same value. New mortgages are then issued, bearing 5 per cent interest.

Another proviso of the measure permits direct government loans on homes up to 80 per cent of their present appraised value, providing there is no existing lien on the property. Loans could not be made on homes valued at more than $15,000.

MacDonald Sails, Happy Over Parley's Outcome

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, sailed homeward today, leaving behind him a solemn plea to the American and British peoples to pull together in the struggle back to prosperity.

Addressing a gathering of the Pilgrims of the United States, MacDonald expressed the hope last night that the two English-speaking nations will "sit on the same side of the table" at the international economic conference.

One thousand persons filled a hotel ballroom to hear the address. Such notables of the financial world as J. P. Morgan, who rarely appears at such functions; Andrew Mellon and Thomas W. Lamont were present. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler introduced the Premier.

'Sacred Cod' Kidnaped; Police Eye Harvard

BOSTON, April 27.—(INS.)—The sacred cod, symbol of the Bay State since 1795 or thereabouts, remained missing from the portals of the Capitol today, while legislators and police cast suspicious eyes across the Charles at Harvard.

Rumors were circulated that the cod would be returned today by mail to Gov. Joseph B. Ely, Mayor James M. Curley, or some other public official.

The "kidnaping of the cod" took place last night. It was stolen from its place of honor in the House of Representatives, where for 39 years it had hung suspended on two wires, directly opposite the speaker's stand.

Officials were inclined to the opinion the theft was a "stunt," and connected with the kidnaping yesterday by members of the staff of Lampoon, Harvard monthly magazine, of Joseph M. Boyd, of New York, sophomore editor of "Lampy's" bitter enemy, Harvard Crimson, daily publication. Boyd later was set free.

M'QUAIDE READY TO JOIN NATIONWIDE WAR ON RACKETS

BUSINESS MEN MUST HELP, HE SAYS

Police Head Declares 'Cleanup' Futile Without Support

Pittsburgh's new superintendent of police, Franklin T. McQuaide, today promised an unremitting war on racketeers as soon as the public makes it possible by "cooperating with the police instead of criminals."

Citing the difficulty of driving out the racketeers when the businessman and the general public pays tribute to the underworld, McQuaide joined with the nationwide campaign against rackets inaugurated by the Hearst newspapers.

McQuide is a veteran of many years of private and public police work. He is an acknowledged authority on crime in Pittsburgh. Succeeding Peter P. Walsh as police superintendent, he promised to purge the city of racketeers as soon as conditions make it possible.

McQuaide said:

"If the businessman would go along with the police and not pay tribute to the racketeer, the war on these parasites would not be so hard.

"The police can rid Pittsburgh and the rest of the country of rackets when the businessman and the private citizen co-operates and not until then.

"Legalization of 3.2 beer was a step in the right direction and marked the beginning of the passing of the racket man. Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would continue the process. After that, the racketeer would not be able to prey upon the honest businessman.

"Legitimate business won't stand for the blackmailer, the hijacker and the shakedown artist.

"I am willing to bend every faculty at my disposal toward an unremitting war on the racketeer when the businessman and the general public make that war possible through their co-operation with police instead of criminals."

DEATH TAKES 3 PRISONERS

With the discovery of the daring break of four inmates from Western Penitentiary today came the announcement that three other prisoners made their escape in Allegheny County—by death.

Charles Bauer, 30-year-old inmate in Western Penitentiary, died of pneumonia just 25 minutes after the Maug escape was discovered. In the County Jail, Clarence Williams, Negro, formerly of 3507 Mulberry way, died from acute alcoholism early today, according to a Coroner's report.

William Henderson, 30, of New Kensington, died during the night in Allegheny County Workhouse, where he was serving a one to three-year sentence on a charge of entering a building. Death was attributed to tuberculosis, the Coroner's office reported.

TEACHER UNPAID FOR MONTHS ENDS LIFE

Chicago Truce Called On Promise to Raise Salary Funds

CHICAGO, April 27.—(INS.)—Paul Schneider, 44, an unpaid Chicago school teacher, committed suicide at his home on the South Side this morning. He was crippled and owned several properties which had been foreclosed.

Telling his wife that he was worried beyond endurance, Schneider went to the basement of his home and shot himself through the temple. Schneider was a manual training teacher at the Washburne School. The widow said:

"He was sick and worried for months because he hadn't been paid, and we could hardly get along."

FOUND DEAD

The teacher arose this morning, greeted his wife and three daughters and then went to the basement. At the sound of the shot, Mrs. Schneider rushed downstairs and found her husband dead on the floor.

The daughters are Evelyn and Gertrude, twins, 15, and Dolores, 7.

Accepting the promise of Mayor Edward J. Kelly that payment of back salaries was imminent, Chicago's belligerent school teachers today declared an armistice on demonstrations.

Meeting with Mayor Kelly after 1,500 of their number had staged the most disorderly scene of their campaign, the teachers promised to abandon plans for further demonstrations until next Wednesday.

SEEK STATE AID

The Mayor and a retinue of governmental leaders then left for the state capital at Springfield to urge passage of legislation designed to enforce collection of $250,000,000 in overdue taxes. The flow of revenue from the public is expected to provide the school teachers and other public employes with more than $60,000,000 in back salaries.

After the Mayor finished addressing the teachers, John Fewkes, one of their leaders, told to the gathering:

"I believe if Mayor Kelly cannot get anywhere he will lead us in the march on the banks. Maybe that isn't what he thinks, though."

The Mayor interrupted:

"He is speaking the truth."

Fewkes then announced there would be no further mass demonstration for a week. One had been planned for today.

ESCAPE THIRD IN 4 YEARS

The break from Western Penitentiary today was the third to occur there in the past four years.

On June 14, 1929, "Daredevil Dick" Spangler and "Honolulu Charlie" Bisman took a leaf from the book of the notorious "Shoebox" Miller who escaped from the institution by concealing himself in a shoe packing case.

On June 24, 1930, R. B. Canfield, of North Bessemer, scaled the walls by using a rope. Two others accompanied him, but both were captured, one suffering a broken leg when he slipped and fell 20 feet.

Spangler and Bisman were captured in Cleveland 24 hours after their break. Canfield was a fugitive almost two years until his capture in California.

Spangler and Bisman escaped in packing cases containing blankets. They hid in the boxes and when these were hauled downtown in a truck, Spangler came forth and drove the truck away while the driver was absent. "Shoebox" Miller used the same metod to flee from the old penitentiary in West Park.

THE ESCAPE ROPE: STOLEN PRISON "WURP" (HEMP) WRAPPED WITH FRICTION TAPE

GLADYS JACKSON . . . PAROLED WHEN SUITOR WENT TO JAIL

details from Butler and Greensburg guarded roads.

While there was no evidence that the men were aided by an automobile, police broadcast description of a car owned by a reputed friend of Maug, living in Butler street, who has a criminal record.

VISITED BY MOTHER, SISTERS

The four prisoners occupied the top tier of cells in the north block. It was known as Range "F." During the day it is watched by one guard. During the night one guard has two tiers, or 240 cells, under his observation.

At 9 o'clock the last count of prisoners for the night is made. The first day check is at 5 a. m. when the escape was discovered.

As soon as the break became known calls were sent to North Side police, city detectives and county detectives. They immediately surrounded the prison while a general alarm was broadcast throughout Western Pennsylvania over the police teletype. All radio scout car police in the city were also pressed into duty watching the known hangouts of the Maug gang.

A newsboy told city detectives that at 2 o'clock this morning he had seen four men hurrying from the direction of the prison. They seemed excited, the newsboy said, and were attired in working clothes.

Night Deputy Warden John Gerstlauer reported that, with a flashlight, he had made the rounds of the front of the prison where the men escaped at 3 a. m., but saw nothing of a rope.

An army of police and detectives was spread to all main roads leading out of the city and to all known haunts of the gang. Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd hurried to the penitentiary to study the escape details, first searching Riverview Park in anticipation the convicts might have used it for a hideaway where outside confederates would pick them up in an automobile.

Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., rushed from his home to the penitentiary while Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide prepared police forces to meet any emergency. Telegrams were sent the principal cities by Boyd for police to be on the lookout for the gang. Boyd telephoned the Cleveland authorities because Maug and his confederates are known to have had former hangouts in that city. He also wired police of Covington, Ky., to be on the lookout for Prince, who formerly lived there.

MANY FRIENDS

The four detectives who had participated in the roundup of the gang before its conviction were ordered with other sleuths to join the man hunt.

Because the prisoners had many friends, particularly women acquaintances whom Boyd feels would quickly give money or other assistance to the fugitives, detectives were ordered to watch all homes and hangouts of their known associates.

Following the arrest of Maug's mother, police searched her home at the West Erie street address and said they confiscated five rugs, alleged to have been stolen, and 32 gallons of alcohol. They took into custody Thomas Byrnes, whose name and address were said by penitentiary officials to have been found among Maug's effects in the prison.

Penitentiary records revealed that Maug sent a three-piece suit to his mother's address, April 20.

EXPECT GUNPLAY

Boyd said he did not expect the gang members to surrender without a fight or gun play if friends furnished firearms. Summing up an early decision in the escape, he said:

"The gang is smart and I doubt that any member would hesitate to shoot. I do not believe they sought cover in the city, but headed out of town through aid from outside accomplices. They had a great number of friends, including many women, who would gladly furnish needed cash or other assistance."

The other detectives who are leading the search in former haunts were Thomas Morgan, Walter Monahan and Robert Marshall. Boyd said these men were well acquainted with the previous habits of the Maug gang before it was captured.

ASHE PUSHES SEARCH

Warden Stanley P. Ashe is directing a search for the escaped men.

He said it was his opinion that the quartet secreted themselves in the yard or some of the buildings after placing the dummies in their cots, and during a "lull" in the night's activities at the changing of the guard made their way to the roof of the chapel. A ladder on the chapel roof bore mute evidence of how they made their way to the cornice of the high grey walls around the prison.

The escaping prisoners were dressed in steel grey coats and trousers, the usual prison garb.

Homicide Detectives W. R. Harirs and Al Grayber, investigating another case at North Side Police Station, accompanied by Capt. John Flavin and Lieut. John J. Lynch, were first to arrive at the prison. A car of county detectives containing Detectives William Black, Lawrence Kline and Thomas Calig, arrived a second later.

HEAVILY ARMED

Maug was employed in the novelty shop of the prison, Turpack in the construction room, Prince in the paint gang and Geisler in the cement gang.

An immediate investigation has been ordered by Warden Ashe to ascertain the source of materials from which the rope was made.

The cleverness of the youthful slayer was demonstrated in the manner in which blankets in the four cots had been arranged to give appearance of sleeping forms. The blankets were "puffed" and covered a pair of trousers and shoes.

Fearing an attempt would be made by the Maug gang to shoot their way out of the courtroom when arraigned, District Attorney Andrew T. Park kept a heavy guard on duty—25 county detectives and 20 deputy sheriffs.

Dream of Escape Convict Trait, Says Ashe

That question was asked Stanley P. Ashe, warden of the penitentiary, several weeks ago by a reporter. He replied:

"Escape is all some of the men think about. They spend their days and nights thinking how they can get over the wall to freedom. Probably if you were in here for a life term you would do the same thing.

SURPRISE, SAYS MAUG'S GIRL

Gladys Jackson, 22-year-old blonde sweetheart of John Maug, expressed surprise today, detectives said, when she learned of Maug's escape from the penitentiary.

Miss Jackson, reputed "soup-maker" of the Maug gang, is at liberty on a three-year parole. She was alleged to have been separating nitroglycerin from dynamite by cooking when arrested at the time the Maug gang was rounded up.

She was taken in custody at her home, 1225 Howard street, today by Detectives Walter Kaiser and Frank Norwicki for questioning. She told them:

"I am surprised. I know nothing whatever of his escape."

The detectives confiscated a packet of 100 letters written to her by Maug while he was in jail and later in the penitentiary.

Captain of Detectives Frank R. Boyd, said one letter by Maug in code had been recovered. It was written in the penitentiary, but Boyd refused to disclose the person to whom it was sent.

Auto Firm Recalls 3,000 More to Work

DETROIT, April 27.—(AP.)—B. E. Hutchinson, chairman of the board of the Plymouth Corporation, today announced that more than 6,000 men are now employed in the motor company's plant, an increase of 100 per cent over the previous month. Approximately 3,000 former employes, he said, have been recalled to the factory.

He said that no further additions to the employment rolls are contemplated at this time.

SOCIALITE SUES MOTHER OF 4 FOR DIVORCE

Dr. McCready Blames 'Other Man' in Testimony

Alluding to "another man," Dr. Frank E. McCready, social registrite of Beaver road, Sewickley, today testified in his divorce suit against Mrs. Mary King McCready, 38, charging cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities.

His wife and mother of his four children admitted association with another man, Dr. McCready testified before Judge George V. Moore. But it was arguments over alterations of their luxurious Sewickley home than finally led to their separation January 10, 1928, he declared.

He related instances of "violent outbursts of temper" during one of which his wife struck him. Her conduct in general affected his health, Dr. McCready said.

The husband's brother, also a physician, described a scene between the McCreadys at his home and testified that the wife had everything a woman could wish for—a beautiful home, her own car and a chauffeur.

The couple were married December 18, 1927.

PEN FUGITIVES DESCRIBED

Descriptions and addresses of the four escaped convicts as broadcast over the police radio were as follows:

John Maug, 38, 5 feet 6¼ inches, 137 pounds, 834 North Lincoln avenue or 116 Erie street.

Ed Turpak, 26, 5 feet 8¼ inches, 142 pounds, 901 Forest avenue, West Homestead, or 229 Ophelia street, Pittsburgh.

Fred Prince, 35, 5 feet 8¾ inches, 153 pounds, 688 Florida avenue, Mt. Lebanon; 620 East One Hundred and Second street, Cleveland, or Kentucky.

All are said to have worn dark blue-gray prison trousers.

Rewards of $150 each for capture of the four men were announced by Western Penitentiary authorities shortly after the escape.

ESCAPED MAN'S MOTHER DYING

The bedside of a dying mother in Cleveland was being watched today in the hope of capturing one of the convicts, who escaped from Western Penitentiary this morning.

Fred Prince learned two weeks ago his mother had been probably fatally stricken in the Cleveland home of his sister. He sent his clothing there, Mrs. M. de Miller, of 6340 Shakespeare street, revealed today.

Mrs. de Miller said she first met Prince last October and befriended him after his arrest. She said she visited Prince two weeks ago at the "pen," and then wrote to the prisoner's mother, telling her where Prince was. Prince, she said, had her send some of his clothing to his mother.

3. A hint that American business, aided by the administration's program, will not wait upon the other nations of the world to move toward a revival of trade.

4. That American business will turn to Latin-America to boom American trade and to establish better Pan-American relations.

5. A proposal that the government guarantee exporters up to 75 per cent against loss in their export trade.

GOLD EMBARGO

At the general session this morning, Mr. Kent said:

"The gold embargo declared in Washington April 19, 1933, was the spectacular method of a President who desired to call the attention of all the world to the chaos that was developing in international trade through the growth of economic nationalism and at the same time lay the groundwork for a return to sound procedure.

"The consequences of this act have already borne good fruit and it would seem as though the shock to the trade of all countries has been sufficiently great to show beyond question the futility of an international competition in trade restrictions. The absolute necessity that foreign trade have some stabilized base for price making has also been brought home to all commercial countries."

CREDIT AID URGED

A proposal that the government provide credit aid to exporters was brought before the convention by Reginald F. Chutter, president of the Foreign Traders' Association of Philadelphia. The act creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be amended to authorize guarantees without recourse to the exporter up to 75 per cent of bills of exchange drawn against export.

Chutter said inquiry among some 700 firms had brought replies from 75 per cent indorsing the proposal. He added government aid in guaranteeing export credits would be optional with business.

H. H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, New York, told the general session there is more than ample gold available in the world. Gold at the present time, he said, can be made to serve as a base for tremendously more credit, and added:

"No one would go so far as to say that the ratio of gold to circulation could not be reduced, so long as a uniform, international policy would be placed in effect. In the last analysis, it is not the given value of a product, but the rigidity of the value that goes to make a good medium of exchange."

FARRELL'S VIEWS

An inkling that American business men's eyes are turning more intently on the possibilities of Latin-American trade came yesterday with the statement of James A. Farrell, chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council:

"The difficulties that confront us at present in European countries, in the expansion of our foreign trade, renders it necessary that we pay greater attention to the possibilities that await us in Latin-America, the Orient and Africa. The pioneering spirit of an earlier America is needed to convert our doubts into sanguine hopes regarding the outlook for our foreign trade."

LINKED TO PARLEYS

The convention here was regarded of especial importance in view of the forthcoming world's economic conference in London and President Roosevelt's discussions with representatives of foreign powers in Washington.

Gold Flow Seen as Spur To Trade Upswing Here

Pittsburgh Industries Show Improvement, Hundreds Hired

With the flowing back of approximately $6,500,000 of gold coin and certificates into the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve Bank, and the deadline for the return of "hoarded" gold set for next Monday, Pittsburgh's business picture took on a brighter hue today. Many individual plants reported pickups in line with the upsurge of buying in the steel, electrical equipment and glass industries.

Many specific instances of improvement in the steel industry are cited to explain the advance to 25 per cent of capacity and the possible additional progress to 30 per cent.

1,250 START TO WORK

The Edgar Thomson works of the Carnegie Steel Company is providing at least temporary employment for 1,250 men by reopening seven open hearth furnaces and three plate mills to manufacture steel rails. This, however, is not attributed to any sudden increase in orders, but is due to an accumulation of buying demands, it was explained.

Additional work will be given men at the Pressed Steel Car Company, McKees Rocks plant, as a result of an order for superstructures for 200 box cars for China, received by the Koppel Industrial Car and Equipment Company.

In the Weirton yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, two additional shifting crews have been added to care for the increased production at the Weirton plant of the National Steel Corporation.

Another augury of quickening tempo for steel producers is seen in the contract awarded Dravo Contracting Company for the 7¼-mile Valverde tunnel as part of the $3,250,000 Colorado River aqueduct in Southern California.

Steel forms for the project, it was reported, will be fabricated in Pittsburgh mills.

This optimistic trend is mirrored in the coal industry. C. C. McGregor, vice president of the Carnegie Coal Company, today stated:

"Things are looking better for us. There is more optimism."

Announcing a gain, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company states its March bookings were the largest of any month since July.

AUTO SALES JUMP

In line with this general betterment, Pittsburgh's automobile business has noted a jump in sales and buying interest during recent weeks. Roy D. Chapin, former secretary of commerce under President Hoover, voiced this progress in an interview for the Sun-Telegraph yesterday while conferring with C. A. Rehtmeyer, Hudson-Essex distributor here.

Chapin, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Hudson Motor Car Company, declared:

"The past two weeks have shown a more definite improvement in the sales of automobiles and in business in general than any previous period during the past 12 months."

TRIBUTE PAID TO PORTER'S TRADE AID

Pittsburgh once was more of a seagoing town than an inland center of commerce.

A Pittsburgher played as great a part in the interest of the United States' foreign trade as any other man in history.

These facts were brought to the attention of the National Foreign Trade convention yesterday by Charles Lyon Chandler, manager of the foreign department of the Corn Exchange National Bank and Trust Company of Philadelphia.

Before the convention is adjourned here it is probable that a wreath will be placed on the grave of this honored Pittsburgher—the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter.

HONORED BY SPEAKER

Chandler rose at the group meeting on Latin-America yesterday to pay the tributes to the convention city and Congressman Porter, who as chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, did much to aid foreign commerce.

As for Pittsburgh, Chandler said that early in the Nineteenth Century, Pittsburgh-built ships were afloat on the high seas when there was not yet a regular roadway by land to the East. He said surprise was occasioned in foreign ports when merchants abroad were informed incoming vessels were from Pittsburgh, and added:

"They knew Pittsburgh was inland, but what they did not know was that this town had the great waterways of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to the Gulf."

LINCOLN RIVERMAN

Chandler said Pittsburgh pioneers were not generally given the credit they deserve for the development of the rivers and the Middle West. It is not generally known, he added, that Abraham Lincoln was in command of a boat that plied the Ohio River in 1829.

Shreveport, La., was named for Capt. Shreve, a Pittsburgh pioneer, he said.

Chandler is lecturing at the University of Pittsburgh today and tomorrow on the history of Pennsylvania's transportation.

LONDON, April 27.—(INS.)—Thirty-one persons were killed and hundreds of cattle destroyed by a cyclone that devastated the town of Unao in the united provinces, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Simla, India, reported today.

SEE TRADE HOPE IN ROOSEVELT PROGRAM

The revival of the foreign trade of the United States is of utmost importance in the restoration of national prosperity, and the steps taken by the administration, together with the international conferences now starting, promise to go far toward overcoming the numerous obstacles in the way of a resumption of normal trade conditions.

This opinion was voiced by a large number of the delegates to the National Foreign Trade Council which opened the second day of its deliberations here this morning.

Francis T. Cole, general manager of the American Manufacturers' Export Association of New York, expressed confidence that President Roosevelt and his advisors have a well-defined plan in readiness to stimulate international commerce. He declared:

"I cannot say just when foreign trade will be restored to normal, but I believe that steps about to be taken will make it possible in the near future."

Stabilization of currency at some reasonable level was declared to be essential for normal international trade relationships by G. L. Dumbauld, treasurer of the Blaw-Knox Company, who said:

Charles W. Higley, second vice president of the Chase National Bank of New York, declared:

"The time has come for us to be considerate neighbors. Nations of the world must realize that the problem of international trade is one common to them all. Reasonable solutions will be of benefit to them all."

Link 'Torch' Deaths' Of Eight to Father

HARRIS, Minn., April 27.—(AP.)—A 43-year-old farmer was the object of police search in two countries today as authorities expressed the opinion that his wife and seven children were slain before their farm home burned more than two weeks ago.

Charred bones of the woman and children were found in ruins of the home, April 14, the day after the fire, County Attorney S. B. Wennerberg, said Johnson had expressed the wish to be "back in Canada."

BRITAIN TO BAN ALIEN PLANTS

A move in England that would vitally affect Pittsburgh industries—restriction of foreign-owned companies operating in England—was forecast yesterday at the National Foreign Trade convention here.

C. M. Peter, export manager of Black and Decker Manufacturing Company, Towson, Md., predicted unrestricted permission to foreign-owned companies to make a profit in England and to send the money out of the country soon will be stopped, and regulations adopted to compel foreign companies selling goods under a "made in England" label to be partly owned by British capital.

In addition paintings are going to the fair from the private collections of Albert C. Lehman, Edgar J. Kaufmann, Homer Saint-Gaudens and W. S. Stimmel.

Seven galleries of the Art Institute of Chicago will be given over to the showing of contemporary paintings by Americans, Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art Institute of Chicago, in charge of assembling the exhibition, will come to Pittsburgh in September to serve on the jury of award for the Thirty-first Carnegie Institute International.

Higher Clothing Prices Coming

Whether you call it "inflation" or "reflation", the fact is that prices of all commodities are going up every day. Wool prices have advanced 66⅔ percent since the first of March, and higher wool prices mean higher prices of clothing.

Common sense and good judgment say that now is the time to buy the clothes you need, for clothing prices are bound to rise just as surely as wool and wheat and corn and cotton are doing already.

It is our sincere belief that never again will you be able to get as much for your dollar in clothes as you can right now, while our quality is the finest in our history and our price is still on the depression level.

We advise you not to delay. Buy two or three garments, even for future use. When the full effects of the rise in raw materials are felt, you will be glad you did.

Our store is full of new Spring fabrics, styles, patterns, colors and models . . . You can have your choice of any suit or topcoat for $18.50.

Buy now and save money. We don't know how long we will be able to sell our clothes for our present low price.

Gimbel Shoppers Comparing Values on April 1st

Come Down to Gimbels in Lilac Time and see us prove that prices are lower than in the year this store opened—1914

In March the plans were laid. We set out to prove prices lower than the "good old days" of 1914 when a moving picture house advertised a "two-reel feature, two comedies and an illustrated song"—all for five cents; card playing at home was frowned upon; O. Henry stories were sweeping the land and the "Ragtime Revolution" was bringing forth the Turkey Trot and Grizzly Bear.

Well, we thought this would be the greatest sale in our 19 years. But we didn't know the half of it. Last week the United States went off the gold standard. Prices started UP. Here we were with $1,000,000 in extra stocks bought at March prices. Sitting on top of the world! No matter how high prices go, these goods will be sold to you in May at mostly 10% to 25% LESS than March pre-inflation prices.

Store Closes at 4:30 P. M. Tomorrow to Get Ready for the Opening Saturday.

Said Mrs. Vallee:

"The idea! I'm going to fight this ridiculous thing until I find out what's behind it."

Miss Smythe charged that the crooner's wife stole the love of Gary Leon, described as the common law husband of Miss Smythe. Leon is an adagio dancer.

MOTHER CHEERS BANDIT SON, NEAR CHAIR

SHARON, Pa., April 27.—Although still hopeful that Governor George White of Ohio, will save her son Tony from the electric chair, Mrs. Dominic Rotunno was in Columbus today to spend the last few hours with him. Rotunno, 31, and Ralph Atterholt, 30, of Brookfield, near here, are scheduled to die in the electric chair tomorrow night for their part in the murder of Constable Scott Vasbinder of Newton Falls, O.

At the small Rotunno home, the father, one sister and two brothers are awaiting word from Mrs. Rotunno. All declared Tony had been a law-abiding man and was a victim of association with the wrong friends.

Last July 5, Owen Hunter, Rotunno and Atterholt were surprised by Constable Vasbinder as they attempted to rob a store in the little Ohio village. Vasbinder was fatally wounded during the gun battle. The three young men escaped, but when they attempted another robbery a few days later in Warren, Hunter was shot and killed. Later Rotunno and Atterholt, who had been wounded, were caught.

DOLLS GIVEN VASCO'S BABY

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Helen Vasco, 2-year-old girl whose left eye was removed by court order, was reported today to be well enough to show interest in bunny rabbits and dolls.

Meanwhile her mother, Mrs. John Vasco, who opposed the operation until the last, was said to be still in a state of near hysteria at her humble home in Hastings-on-Hudson.

The mother moaned:

"She's dead, I know she's dead."

She paid no heed to relatives who gave her messages from Presbyterian Hospital saying that Helen was rallying splendidly after the operation which removed a deadly tumor that was creeping toward the brain.

The girl's father, an immigrant laborer, denied yesterday previous reports that he had consented to the operation.

PINCHOT SEEKS RELIEF SNARL SOLUTION

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 27.—Senator Harry B. Scott, the intrepid scout from Centre County, today will match wits with the old scout from Pike County, Gov. Pinchot. Other Republican organization leaders, having been deprived of practically everything but their legislative ties and vests in previous conferences with the Governor on unemployment relief, are fighting shy of further ventures with Mr. Pinchot.

But not so Senator Scott, who is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The Senator and the Governor are going to recanvass one of the numerous relief conferences which didn't jell, that which included the 4-mill personal property tax on bank deposits as a means of affording relief revenue.

THREE REPEAL BILLS

As they meet, the Senate will have for consideration three bills, all different, designed to take from the Governor authority to include in the state tax a bankers' impost on revenue which is estimated to yield $8,000,000 and which was included in the revenue program at an agreement reached Monday—and which lasted for at least three hours.

All the bills repeal and clarify the Einstein bill, which relieves bank depositors of the tax and counties of the revenue, and appears to have shifted the tax to the bankers and the revenue to the state. All explain the Legislature didn't mean what it said it meant, and will the Governor be nice and play the game.

APPROPRIATION ISSUE

The appropriation situation is also to be discussed by Senator Scott and the Governor, and if the meeting runs true to form the Senator will emerge committed to raising appropriations to a level higher than the Governor asked in his budget. The Governor has been just that smart a trader in every previous conference.

As a matter of fact, there is no comprehensive relief program, because the Legislature and its legal advisers contend that the Governor cannot capture the nebulous $8,000,000. No one will know surely until the matter is tested in the courts, and meanwhile the unemployed may have to chew on writs and briefs instead of grits of beef.

Patient Now Can Control Dentist Drilling Teeth

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 27.—(AP.)—A dentist's chair gadget which gives the patient control over the drilling going on in his mouth was introduced to the New Jersey Dental Association today.

The patient holds the gadget in his hand and when the drill begins to hurt presses a button and stops it whether the dentist likes it or not.

STATE ROAD AID VETO HINTED

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(INS.)—Final approval of both the Senate and the House today had been given to the Williamson bill appropriating $19,250,000 from the motor fund to the various municipalities for highway work.

The bill is now ready for the Governor and advance information is that he has the veto pen inked to receive it.

Under the provisions of the bill, Philadelphia would receive $3,000,000; Pittsburgh, $1,500,000; Scranton, $250,000, while third-class cities would receive a total of $1,500,000. The bill would allocate $750,000 to the first-class townships while the second-class townships would get $10,000,000.

Anticipating the veto of the bill, Representative Blumberg, Philadelphia, yesterday introduced in the House a bill to appropriate $3,000,000 to Philadelphia for street improvement and maintenance.

The 53,000-mile rural road program of the administration would be defeated if the Williamson bill should become a law.

Teacher Education Measure in House

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(AP.)—The Stevenson (Mercer) bill making the requirements for teaching in Pennsylvania schools more stringent was up for action in the House today.

The measure would require all new grade school teachers, after January 1, 1936, to complete a four-year college course before receiving a teaching certificate and all persons wishing to teach in high schools to be college graduates and to complete one year of practice teaching in an approved high school.

RODGERS DENIES RIFT BROUGHT RESIGNATION

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(AP.)—Denying differences with the State Emergency Relief Board over policies are responsible, William B. Rodgers, of Pittsburgh, says he intends to resign May 1 as the board's executive director.

Rodgers announced last night he plans to resume the presidency of the McCrady-Rodgers Company, a Pittsburgh sand firm. Eight months ago the company granted him leave to take the state position, which pays $10,000 a year.

He attended the board's meeting yesterday, after which Gov. Pinchot announced "only routine business" was handled.

Rodgers said he notified the Governor verbally of his intention to resign. He added that he had an understanding with Pinchot that he could return to work at any time to his private affairs.

Selection of Rodgers' successor lies with the Governor and the board.

Mayor Eddie McCloskey and other Johnstown officials asked the board for its approval of two bills establishing stamp scrip, and providing for its use by municipalities in building sidewalks.

Clarence E. Toole, of Selinsgrove, was named executive director of the Snyder County Board, at $100 a month.

Consideration of May relief allocations was postponed to Friday.

36 State Employes Ousted by Pinchot

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(AP.)—Dismissal of 36 state employes and voluntary resignations of 13 others were announced today by the Governor's office. None of those dismissed is from Allegheny County.

Of the dismissals, 15 were from the Department of Property and Supplies, 19 from the Department of Public Instruction, one from Highways and one from Agriculture.

VETS THREATEN TO EVICT LEGISLATORS

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(AP.)—The General Assembly was told today that if it does not enact relief and beer control legislation, "it will be thrown out of Harrisburg."

The "threat" was made in a letter received by Representative O. J. Powell, Northumberland, which he read to the House, from the American Legion Post at Shamokin, R. E. McKeever, post adjutant.

The letter says:

"I have been instructed by my post, representing almost 700 World War veterans to write you stating that if you fellows don't soon get down to business and get some action on the beer and relief bills, there will be such an uprising in this state thatt he people will come down to Harrisburg and throw the whole bunch out."

Assembly Pay Cut Bills Before Pinchot

HARRISBURG, April 27.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot had a choice today between slashing the salaries of Legislators either $500 or $300 beginning with the next biennium.

The Senate concurred in amendments to the Reed bill, fixing the salary at $2,700, and sent it to the executive to join the Holmes bill providing for $2,500 a biennium.

KIDNAP, DEATH QUIZ TURNS TO JOHNSTOWN

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—New York Federal authorities investigating the kidnaping of Albert Hendler, son of L. Manuel Hendler, wealthy Baltimore confectioner, and the subsequent attempt to get $7,500 from the father by a mailed threat of violence to himself and his son, today began to study the death of Ida Kirk, at Leonardtown, Md., last January.

In the letter mailed to the elder Hendler from New York, April 13, he was warned not to follow Ida Kirk's example and inform federal or state authorities about the threat against himself.

Assistant United States Attorney Alvin McK. Sylvester said today he would question Lucian Pesco, of Johnstown, Pa., who was held yesterday in $15,000 bail charged with attempting to extort money by means of a threat through the mails in violation of the so-called "Lindbergh law."

Plot Hidden from Bride, Husband on Honeymoon

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(INS.)—The former Miss Ellen Swan Howland, now Mrs. Hamilton H. Hawkins-Whitshed Pollard, and her husband, were honeymooning in the South today, unaware of the plotting of an extortionist who threatened her safety and the "success" of her wedding unless he was paid $5,000.

Details of detectives guarded the wedding here last Monday, it was revealed today, although both the bride and bridegroom were unaware of their presence.

Pollard is the son of Maj. Gen. J. H. W. Pollard, World War hero, and will reside with his bride at Esher, Surrey, England, after an American wedding trip.

Mrs. Frederick Hoppin Howland, the bride's mother, received the crudely written extortion note several days before the wedding. She withheld it from her daughter but called in police. Detectives fixed a trap for the extortionist but he failed to appear.

Seized in Death Plot Against State Senator

SOMERVILLE, N. J., April 7.—(Universal)—Scores of New Jersey detectives and state police today had united in frustrating an attempt to extort $12,000 from Mrs. Dryden Kuser, under threat of killing her husband, State Senator Dryden Kuser, of Bernardsville.

In compliance with a threatening letter mailed last Sunday, Mrs. Kuser answered her home telephone yesterday. Then, while the telephone system of Somerset County was being watched, police rushed to a candy store in Raritan where they arrested George Sabol, 28, of Raritan.

As he walked from a phone booth he was grabbed and, according to the police, said:

"Well, I guess you've got me."

Mrs. Vandergrift is the wife of the State Director of Finance.

2 PLEAD GUILTY IN PHANTOM COST CASES

Justice of the Peace Fred W. Roll, 32, of Glenfield, and former Constable John M. Fiebig, of Kilbuck Township, were in jail today awaiting sentence by Judge Samuel H. Gardner, after entering pleas of guilty late yesterday to conspiracy to cheat and defraud Allegheny County.

The Judge said he would fix their terms later as there are similar cases to be heard.

County Detective David M. Drexler testified he had confiscated the office records of Roll, at the instance of District Attorney Andrew T. Park. He said that an audit showed Roll had collected $1,019 costs in 162 fictitious cases which the squire had marked "discharged," with costs on the county.

Fiebig, charged with serving warrants and subpenas for witnesses in these phantom cases, had collected $1,679, it was testified. Drexler said he found 43 cases in which alleged liquor law violators had been fined from $25 to $50, totaling $1,035, which sum had not been turned over to the county.

Fiebig pleaded guilty to collection of $245 costs in phantom cases from the office of Justice Thomas H. Steck, of Aleppo Township. Steck, not yet apprehended, sent word to the District Attorney yesterday that he was coming in to give himself up, and asked how much bail he would have to furnish.

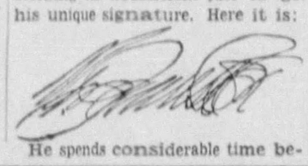
MANY SEEK COX SIGNATURE

It isn't strange that when the public hears about Father Cox he is usually making an appeal for funds or food or furniture for the army of Pittsburgh's poor that looks to him for assistance.

Very few, however, really know of the many other activities that command his time seven days a week. The records of his parish office disclose that he personally made more than 500 sick calls during the last three months. These calls could, perhaps, have been just as well made by an assistant priest, but the demand is always for Father Cox and he makes as many daily calls as an otherwise busy day will permit.

He is in his parish office every afternoon to hear personal appeals, to give counsel and material help when possible. It requires from one to two hours every day to answer his mail. He makes it a rule to personally acknowledge every donation, no matter how small, and it is a peculiar fact that souvenir hunters are really sending in donations just to get his unique signature. Here it is:



He spends considerable time between his other activities on the Sun-Telegraph subscription drive and is getting gratfying results. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

TWO NEW PLYMOUTHS

AMAZING NEW LOW PRICES! . . LONGER . . MORE BEAUTIFUL!

A STANDARD SIX WITH 108-INCH WHEELBASE

Floating Power, of course. Hydraulic Brakes and Safety-Steel Body to protect you. A big, powerful, 70-horsepower, six-cylinder engine to carry you buoyantly over the roads. A large, roomy body to provide a full-sized family of five with the utmost of comfort.

Yes . . . it's the biggest, roomiest six in this new price class. Brilliantly engineered! Solidly built. An honest value.

What about price? That's the biggest news of all. Are you one of those people who thought that Plymouth was a little higher in price than the very low-priced cars? That's no longer true. Today Plymouth matches competition dollar-for-dollar . . . and on top of this piles up value features that nobody else can offer.

For example: A new Plymouth Standard Six 4-door Sedan sells for $510. You can buy a four-cylinder car for this price . . . but nobody else offers you a six-cylinder 4-door sedan at this figure.

The Plymouth Standard is America's lowest-priced six-cylinder 4-door Sedan. And remember . . . it's a six with Floating Power, Hydraulic Brakes . . . and all the features that made Plymouth famous.

See these cars. Ride in the Plymouth Standard Six . . . and don't buy any new car until you do.

PLYMOUTH STANDARD SIX

$445 AND UP F. O. B. FACTORY

A DE LUXE SIX WITH 112-INCH WHEELBASE

YOU'LL agree that something important has happened when Plymouth announces two new lines of cars. This part of the story is about the De Luxe . . . the new, long wheelbase Plymouth.

It has typical Plymouth fundamental value. A 70-horsepower six . . . with Floating Power engine mountings. Safety-Steel Bodies . . . Hydraulic Brakes . . . Free Wheeling . . . and Rigid-X frames.

But the real story starts with beauty. The radiator has been restyled. More beautiful than ever . . . with bullet headlights, lacquered shell, and gleaming chromium grill.

Best of all, the De Luxe is bigger! 112-inch wheelbase! The biggest low-priced six in America.

Interiors are more luxurious . . . upholstered in real broadcloth or mohair . . . wide pleats and deep-tufted seats. There's a new, smart instrument panel . . . a convenient glove box . . . silk assist cords . . . all the little touches that gladden a woman's heart.

Everything you can ask for in a car is in the Plymouth DeLuxe. There's speed, there's comfort, there's safety, there are thrills.

There's economy, too. Lower gas bills, because dead weight has been engineered out. Lower upkeep . . . because valves go 30,000 miles without grinding . . . springs never need to be oiled.

Today these TWO NEW PLYMOUTHS are on display in the showrooms of Dodge, DeSoto and Chrysler dealers. Go see them. Take a fresh look "at all three" . . . and see how Plymouth again sets the pace in car value. You'll get a big thrill.

PLYMOUTH DE LUXE SIX

Will Rogers To Glorify Stooge

By AIRCASTER

The indications are that Will Rogers is returning to the radio with the spirit of uplift in his homely heart. Behind his facetious exterior, William conceals an overwhelming pity for oppressed humanity, and not the least of those who find a sympathy in Rogers, is the stooge. Mr. Rogers philosophizes:

"The stooge is so representative of down-trodden Mr. Public that he needs to be elevated to a plane of justice and right."

His first move in this direction was to decide to employ a stooge in his forthcoming series of NBC broadcasts—a departure in the Rogers routine. But that, seems to him, is not enough. There must be a method of making it possible for the stooge to raise his chin and walk proudly among his peers, he figured. And he has hit upon that method.

'Prof.' to Be Stooge

Mr. Rogers will choose as his first stooge nothing less than an actual college professor. He has wired ahead to his agents to find a galaxy of amiable servants from which he may pick a pedagogic foil. The agency has done as bidden, and today the cowboy humanitarian will make his selection.

It is not inconceivable that the Association of Stooges which now is to include comedians' wives, announcers and college professors, will shortly reach the proud pinnacle from which a stooge in the near future will be in a position to pick his comedian.

Dick Powell is listed for six broadcasts during his week-end engagement at Duquesne Garden. Beginning tomorrow at 12 noon, when WJAS will broadcast Mayor Herron's welcome to Dick at the City-County Building, he is scheduled as follows: Friday—WJAS, 12, 2 p. m. and 6:45 p. m.; KDKA, 10 p. m.; WWSW, 2:45 p. m., Saturday, KQV, 12:30 p. m.

Something is flooey with the new NBC cigaret program. The patron is casting about for a knock-'em-down-drag-'em-out presentation, while seriously considering the cancellation of contracts with Ferde Grofe's Band and Ranny Weeks, the swell New England warbler.

* * *

Another weird situation has developed in connection with the Sunday night NBC shaving cream show, on which Joe Moss and Ralph Kirbery are featured. Kirbery was recently engaged to sing, and in the few weeks he has been performing, has amassed a terrific heap of fan mail.

But the mail comes from women exclusively, and shaving cream is hardly the dish for ladies. So Ralph is out after four more weeks.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

This first baseball ladies' day brings to mind the confusion attendant upon a similar occasion last year.

Bill Benswanger, Pirate boss, invited, through these microphones, the lady globe trotters, and did they turn out? They did; and were some of them angry? They were.

All because Uncle Sam collects 10 cents tax on every admission, free, or otherwise, and the gate keepers swore that every one had a $10 bill; at least that's how it appeared to them.

They were hoping today that the welcome guests would have the exact change.

* * *

Some of the truck drivers and contractors are all steamed up about the reported stopping of trucks on the highways by local authorities who inquire about their certificates of public convenience.

The Automobile Club of Pittsburgh informs us that the Department of Revenue expects to institute a statewide drive on truckers operating without Public Service permits beginning May 1.

The law governing the licensing of trucks was passed in 1914 and provides that any person operating a truck for hire must have a certificate of Public Convenience from the Public Service Commission. This does not include trucks owned by, or operating exclusively for, private businesses, but it does apply to any one holding his truck out for hire.

Golden Characters Shadowed By Bad Manners

Would you marry a man whose character you respected, but whose manners made you want to crawl through a crack in the floor?

Fritzi would like to know. Her Beloved has a Grand Soul, But—

He does eat with his knife, wear terrible ties and say "aint." So then, what?

Dear Miss Robinson:

Maybe you'll think I'm frightfully silly, and that my problem is trivial. But to me it is really important—so important that the very direction of my life hangs on solving it—and I don't know what to do. Will you please help me?

It may sound a little peculiar when I tell you that the big question is my boy friend's manners—or rather, his lack of them.

He hasn't had a very good chance in life. His folks are pretty ignorant, and he just doesn't know any better than to say "I aint got no car," and eat peas with his knife, and wear loud ties. He chews gum pretty obviously, too, and sometimes pops it absent-mindedly if he's thinking about something. He just simply lacks polish.

I suppose I shouldn't mind all that. He is awfully good and kind and dependable. He is generous to me, and he is very hard-working and ambitious.

But the truth is that, in spite of all these good points, these little things he does get on my nerves till I'm nearly crazy.

HESITATES TO MARRY

I suppose you'll say, "Well, why didn't you notice them before you went and fell in love with him?" The answer to that is that I fell in love with him because he is really such a fine fellow, and so very attractive in many ways. I thought I wouldn't mind his manners; but the more I see of them, the more I do mind.

Now he wants me to marry him. I would say "yes" in a minute if it weren't for those crude ways of his. I do love him. Do you think my love will make me forget them in time—or do you think I can get him to change?

Oh, please help me. What can I do? Shall I marry him, or shan't I? FRITZI.

Shall you marry him when you're ashamed of him!

No. No-o-o-o. No-o-o-o!

It never works. You'd be embarrassed at the altar, even irritated at your wedding breakfast—and infuriated, to the point of murder, before you returned from your honeymoon.

Then, unless you possess superhuman fairness and patience, you'd begin to be sorry for yourself, and the battle would be on!

HELP HIM

He'd be mad at you for not considering his feelings, and you'd despise him for not considering yours, and presently you'd both be telling it to the judge—and mortgaging Great Aunt Hepzibah's emerald earrings to pay the lawyers!

Then what's the alternative? reform him? A ticklish job, little girl. For, unless you had the tact of an angel, he'd say you were trying to "high hat" him—and maybe he'd be right.

But there's one method which might succeed. You say he is ambitious. Chances are he's also sensitive and proud. Appeal to that ambition; work with that pride. Praise him for his real fineness. Work with his pride. Show your faith in him. If he can once trust that he'll be willing to take any advice from you.

Help him to see how much more he can do for himself and for you, if he'll learn the little niceties of life which "will do him credit." Show him that he wants to wear becoming colors so that people may see his face and body at their best. Tell him that "becoming manners" serve exactly the same purpose—and that out of your love for him and pride in him you want to help him.

Fay King Pleads for Honesty In All Transactions

By FAY KING

The shoplifter who steals from the profusion of merchandise in a large store may think such a big place of business will never miss it. But every article is counted, and a worker responsible for her allotment must make good such losses.

You are not outsmarting big business when you knowingly pass a counterfeit bill. It will be made up out of the salary of the cashier you imposed upon.

When you are given too much change by mistake, or walk off without paying for your meal, it is the clerk who suffers, or the waiter who is fined and must pay your bill.

There is nothing clever in causing hardship for one who has little more than yourself.

Think of this and be square.

Madge Sends Brown for More Men

At Brown's conjecture that return of the gangsters who had been following Owen and Marion might be a trap, my throat went suddenly dry. My nerves were so taut that any suggestion of further obstacles in our projected rescue of Marion sent them jittering. Then the remembrance of the conversation I had heard between the two men who had been trailing Owen flashed reassurance to my brain, and I spoke quickly, decisively.

"I am sure it was not a trap." Then I outlined briefly the colloquy Ronald and I had overheard.

"That's a help," Brown said with evident relief when I had finished. "That leaves only Owen on this trail. But, you know he's in all probability heading for some place where he's cached a motor car, and he no doubt has help waiting at the point where he means to change the horse for another method of travel.

"He can't go farther than these deserted mountain trails with a girl bound and gagged in front of him. He'll have to get her into a motor car, or a covered wagon, or something.

"And right there comes in the question of a possible flight. Those gangsters he has trailing around after him are tough babies. I'll take my chance on any two ordinary men, but those birds are something else again. The young fellow and I can't hope to take care of more than one man apiece, so if Owen happens to have more than two men there, we'll be out of luck. I'm wondering if—"

SENDS FOR HELP

I cut him short decisively.

"There's only one thing to do," I said. "Mr. Brixton and I will hurry down the trail after Owen as fast as we can. And you go back to that little woodland glade where we were all waiting, and see if any of the men are still there. If not, some of them are probably on the way down the mountain with Carolyn. But you can be sure that Mr. Underwood, with helpers, is combing these mountains, and— Listen! Look!"

From above us there came a whirling noise, and moving rapidly through the moonlight passed the silver-tinted autogyro, which I knew held Dicky and Hugh Grantland.

"They are circling over this whole section," I told Brown, "and no doubt they will soon spot Owen. Then they will keep him in sight until the rescue of the girl is accomplished.

"When this trail of Owen ends, one of us will follow him and the other will remain to guide the rest of you, if possible, along his next route. And now, let us hurry. Come.

If Brown meant to demur, I gave him no chance for his objections. But he gave me quick and cheerful acquiescence.

FOLLOW HORSEMAN

"That's a mighty good plan," he said as he turned up the trail. "I'll do my best to get you enough men to tie that bird Owen up in double bow knots."

"Good luck!" I sent the words over my shoulder as I caught Ronald's hand again, and for what I hoped was the last time without interruption, hurried down the mountain path, now bathed in moonlight. Whether because of this illumination, or because our excitement made us careless of precarious footing, we were able to accelerate our pace down the steep path, and I knew that we were going much faster than Charles Owen on horseback would dare to go.

But we had lost so much time that I feared that even at our greater pace he would reach the end of the trail before us, and when the path began to be less precipitous, Ronald and I fairly raced along it.

That Dicky and Hugh, circling aloft, had seen us I was quite sure. Every time the silver-tinted, whirring machine came directly over us, it dipped as if in signal. Ronald and I waved wildly back each time, but had no means of knowing whether or not they had seen us.

And then, as we rounded a turn in the path, far below us we saw the slowly plodding horse which carried Owen and Marion.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Five minutes of scalp massage every night will make the old glory mop perk up, take a new lease of life, shine with healthy luster. Part the hair at various places, trickle on olive oil with a medicine dropper, spread out fingers and thumbs and see what you can do. Give an extra three-minute treatment to the back of the neck. There are large arteries there that take their nourishing elements to the hair roots. Rouse 'em up.

To keep cake from breaking or crumbling when lowering in cake tin, set on a small tea towel. Pick up the corners and lift the cake into the tin.

When boiling a pudding, place an inverted saucer or small plate at the bottom of the saucepan. This will prevent the pudding from burning.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Sending a Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When sending a wedding gift to a relative, should the formal Mr. and Mrs. be crossed off and our first names written, or should the card be left as it reads: Mr. and Mrs. John Leon Downs? Also should I write anything else on the card, such as "Best Wishes." READER.

Usually now when we send a wedding gift, even to a relative, we simply enclose our card with the gift. The fact that the gift is sent at this special time carries its own message of best wishes.

However, it is correct, if we wish, to write a message on the card . . . a message of "Best wishes," or "Dearest love and all good wishes for your happiness, always." If we do write a message on the card, then we must cross off the titles before the names, or, in the case of Mrs. or Mr. and Mrs. cards, we must, obviously, cross off the whole name, and write the first name underneath. The idea is that, at the moment when we write something on our visiting-card, the card becomes a note and then the name should be written as a note-signature, the informal name.

A Proper Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

While ill a few days ago, a woman whom I have never met, telephoned and invited me to a tea at her home, given for mothers whose children attend a school in which she is interested. My family overlooked giving me the message until the day after the tea. Is an invitation of this kind supposed to be acknowledged with an acceptance or refusal, and should I write, at this late date, an apology, or is an acknowledgment to a telephone invitation of this kind necessary?

READER.

It isn't too late to write your note of apology to this hostess, and explain to her quite frankly just what happened and just how sorry you are, not to have received the invitation in time to have sent your regrets.

Not to write her would, I think, cause you future embarrassment, and when you meet her and necessarily have to explain, your words won't sound as convincing as they will now, if you write the note at once.

RAILS HELD FOE TO SHIP CANAL

Railroad propaganda has sought to halt the improvement of the Federal waterways, according to a report made to United States Engineers in Washington by the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board.

The report points out at length the importance of the proposed Lake Erie and Ohio River canal as a low cost freight carrier to a large portion of the middle west.

The controversy regarding river improvement has been brought about by managers and financiers of the railways, it is charged.

Through legislation, the railroads have sought to stabilize their existing investments regardless of the effect on the public purse, it is declared. The result, it is stated, will be to dry up every form of transportation cheaper than the railroads.

ARMED BURGLAR THREATENS PAIR

An armed robber poked a revolver into the ribs of A. J. Boss as he lay in bed at his home 1337 Cordova road, early today and told him to keep quiet. The robber escaped with $6.50 taken from a pocketbook of Mrs. Boss.

Mrs. Boss, aroused at 1:30 A. M., heard somebody downstairs. She awakened her husband. Before they could investigate the robber entered the bedroom and ordered both to remain quiet. Boss attempted to rise in bed, when the gunman poked the gun into his ribs. Previously the man had ransacked the first floor. After searching the room the robber pulled the door shut and fled.

MONONGAHELA, Pa., April 27.—One hundred baby chicks joined the ranks of the heroic today, giving their lives in a fire, and at the same time saving the home of William J. Huber from destruction.

Huber was away. The chicks, in an attic room, attracted the attention of neighbors.

POLICE SEEKING BABY DESERTER

An unidentified white man who left a 5-week-old girl with Mrs. Loretta Holmes, Negro, of 1626 Wylie avenue, yesterday morning, was being sought by Center avenue police today. The man asked Mrs. Holmes to care for the infant, saying he would return for it. When he failed to come back police were notified.

The man gave Mrs. Holmes 75 cents and promised to pay her $3 a week for caring for the child in the daytime while its mother worked. He was accompanied by a boy, about 12.

Dr. S. J. Marcus, city physician, said he would confer with social workers today to help find a home for the baby.

RAFT MAKES UP WITH STUDIO

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—(AP.)—Differences between George Raft and Paramount Studios have been settled, said an announcement last night from the studios.

The film actor is expected in Hollywood next week to commence work on a new picture.

Raft was suspended by the studio recently when he refused to play the starring role in "The Story of Temple Drake."

Girl, 10, Offers Cash to Aid Hoover

CASPER, Wyo., April 27.—(AP.)—Martha Rouse, 10, felt sorry for Herbert Hoover when she read how the bank holiday had caught him in New York City with a scarcity of cash.

She promptly penned the former President a note explaining she had a small savings bank, and if it would help, she would like to send him the contents.

This week a parcel arrived from California. It contained a cordial note from Mr. Hoover and his autographed photograph.

DETROIT SHUNS $2 SCRIP NOTES

DETROIT, April 27.—(AP.)—Although they have not been paid since February 1, Detroit city firemen would rather continue payless than accept the city's scrip in $2 denominations.

Other city employes demurred—but the firemen refused outright to take the supposedly unlucky paper.

No more scrip in $2 denominations will be manufactured for the city, but meanwhile 250,000 pieces of $2 scrip remain on hand.

GUESTS GIVEN WELCOME AT FOOD SHOW

It was Triangle Grocers' Night at the Food Show last night, and 1,800 Triangle grocers from the Pittsburgh district crowded into Motor Square Garden, the guests of the Retail Grocers' Association, sponsors of the show.

The show's manager, J. V. Loughran, welcomed the visitors and, after a brief address, conducted them through the exhibits. Charles Wolff, president of the Retail grocers, also addressed the Triangle grocers.

A. J. Morgan, superintendent of the Triangle Grocers' Association, in an address, emphasized the advantage of a modernized store. He pointed out the growth of his organization which he said tripled its business in three months.

Other speakers included R. L. Dietrich, president of the Triangle Association, and Robert Miller, supervisor of the Triangle stores in the Canton, O., district. Following the meeting, there was a general reception, and refreshments were served.

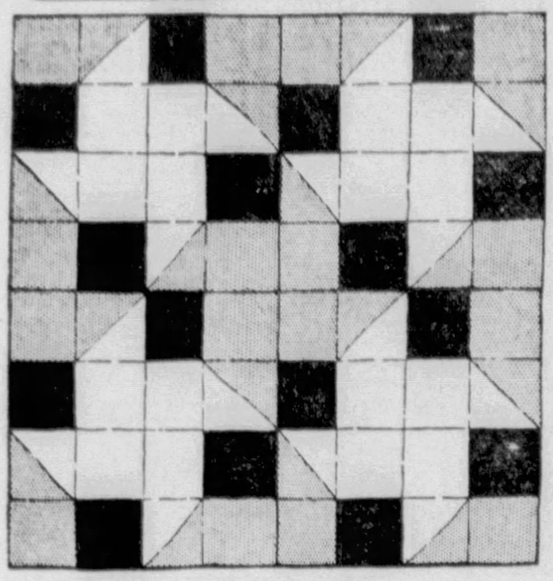
The show, which is attracting many women's organization groups, is open daily from 2 to 5:30 p. m. and 7 to 10:30 p. m. A baking contest features each school session.

Women's organizations listed to attend tomorrow afternoon's school are the Companions of Foresters, North Methodist Episcopal Church, Federation of Patriotic Societies and the Hazelwood's Women's Club. Demonstrations will be given by Mrs. Clara Smith and Miss Helen Wedican, home economic experts.

PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



The Pinwheel No. 401

By LAURA WHEELER

Old patchwork quilts show the ingenuity of the needlewoman of the early nineteenth century, both in their quaint designs and names. THE PINWHEEL is one of the popular old patterns. It has a feature that is only occasionally found in patchwork quilts—the blocks when joined form an interchanging design with the pinwheel repeated in the background in another color.

This design is easy to make because the pattern includes complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, yardage chart, diagram of full size quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials and clearly outlined drawing of the patch pieces.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Finding a Fit

Even though a player holds 5½ honor-tricks, a conclusion that the hand contains an absolute game or a possible Slam is unwarranted if partner's responses indicate a misfit. North, with the hand below, showed a fine understanding of the game in going slowly in the bidding with an evenly-balanced hand and no fit with partner's repeated Takeouts, which were in the nature of "Signoffs." The hand was played in the Philadelphia Mixed Championship, and was one of the reasons why Mr. Charles H. Goren and Mrs. H. L. Peterson won the event. Mrs. Peterson held the North hand, and Mr. Goren the South.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

Mrs. H. L. Peterson

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣ (1)	Pass	2 ♡ (2)	Pass
3 ♣ (3)	Pass	3 N T (4)	Pass
4 ♣ (5)	Double	Pass (6)	Pass
Pass

1—Naturally intending to "sign off".
2—Disclosing a second biddable suit.
3—Still "signing off."
4—North's hand is too strong to permit play for less than game.
5—South is still doubtful.
6—The Double relieves North of any further responsibility. Of course, it would be impossible to find another bid, despite the wealth of honor-tricks, because the hand lacks intermediate values in any of the suits and has failed to establish a fit in the North and South holdings.

West's Double was extremely bad, as it was made one round too early. There was a slight chance that he might be able to double five clubs, for, as North afterwards admitted, despite the repeated warnings from her partner, she had not fully decided whether to pass or to take a long gamble on game. West, of course, counted on 3 trump tricks, and the Ace of spades, but met with bitter disappointment in the play.

The Knave of diamonds was the Opening lead, and when the Dummy went down, West's holding to justify the Double was an open book to South. The only important cards missing must be in his hand to warrant the Penalty Double with a partner who had persistently passed. It was, therefore, evident that he held the Ace of spades and four trumps, for he could have no prospect of a trick in either hearts or diamonds. To fulfill the contract, South, therefore, must hold West to 2 trump tricks and this could be accomplished only by a forced lead play in trumps.

This was in effect a "Backward Grand Coup," as South's trumps must be reduced to the same number of West's. The diamond was won and the King of spades led, losing to the Ace. Another diamond was returned by West, which was won in the Dummy, a high spade cashed and another spade ruffed. Dummy was re-entered with a heart, and the third round of diamonds was ruffed by the Declarer. Again a heart was led, and a heart returned and ruffed. South now held four trumps, the same number as West. At this point, South led the 7 of clubs. West was compelled to win and lead into the trump tenace, thus losing one of his expected 3 trump tricks.

An unusual playing situation had been handled with masterly skill.

Today's Question

Holding the following hand, what call should the Responding Hand make after an Opening bid of one diamond, no intervening bid?

♠ K ♡ 8 7 3 ◇ 8 6 5 4 ♣ K 7 6 3 2

Answer: Two diamonds, as the hand contains 4 plus playing-tricks in support of diamonds. A bid of two clubs should not be made as the hand contains but ½ plus honor-trick.

How to Keep Well -:-

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Lay Foundation of Good Health in Early Years

Children suffer from many ailments. Most of these are preventable. Merely to say this should put every parent on the alert to guard against unnecessary dangers.

Dr. Copeland

The contagious diseases of childhood are readily transmitted from one child to another. Some of these can be avoided by proper care and in consequence much unnecessary suffering prevented.

Simple hygienic rules taught during childhood have much to do with the future health of the individual. It is believed by most students of the subject that the ideal place for such instruction is in the school.

I believe this an excellent plan, but certainly such teaching should not end there. It should be practiced, emphasized and repeated at home. Home teaching is sometimes more convincing than the instruction received at school. Unfortunately, many of us are careless about such matters. In any event, the instruction at school is vitally essential.

Children should be taught at an early age the use of the handkerchief. They should be instructed how to protect the nose and mouth when coughing or sneezing. They should be given the reasons why their not doing it may spread disease.

Every child should be warned against the common habit of placing fingers and pencils in the mouth.

Every child should be carefully instructed in the necessity of washing the hands with soap and water. This habit should be acquired as soon as possible. Everybody, young and old, should remember the necessity of having clean hands before eating.

Brushing the teeth upon arising and retiring, should be made a part of the daily routine of every child. This responsibility should begin at as early an age as possible.

To insure health among our young, it is advisable that they be examined periodically. Strict attention must be given to posture, eye, nose, throat, dental and other possible defects, should be discovered as soon as possible. When these are corrected in early life, much undue and unnecessary suffering is escaped in later life.

These are mere hints. But I do want you to know that the welfare of the child and the state of adult health are founded on the health practices of youth.

June Yorkin, lyric soprano, presented a program of songs last night in Carnegie Music Hall that would have done credit to much more experienced singers. The audience was cordial and asked for several encores.

Mr. Lissfelt

Miss Yorkin's choice of songs proves her a discriminating and ambitious young lady, and the voice is as lovely a soprano as we know. In music school it is doubtless at greatest ease, for in the Bellini air we could sense its dormant possibilities.

Vocally, the singer is still quite young, needs to learn how to build support for those finer high tones, wants easier breath control and a certain abandon which comes with security and which enhances the excellent music she chooses to sing.

Musically, all but her English songs are rather on a dead level. Her "Figaro" came nearest its style. Miss Yorkin has charming stage presence and when she gains more confidence it will be interesting indeed to hear this beautiful voice again.

Henry Harris played the accompaniments.

CIVIC LEADERS HERE INDORSE PRESIDENT'S DAY

POLITICS

Believe Macfarlane Will Be Candidate

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 27.—Politicians from Pittsburgh, now attending the legislative session, have received information which appears to warrant the belief that President Judge James R. Macfarlane of Common Pleas Court is to be a candidate for renomination at the September primary.

Mr. Shields

This is contrary to the interpretation which was placed upon Judge Macfarlane's attitude toward his tenure of office.

However, it has come directly to politicians here that Judge Macfarlane is taking the steps which are necessarily initial to a campaign. Within the past few days, he has made the direct statement that he intended to run, according to information which seems authentic.

He is understood to have sounded out some men familiar with political conditions in the county outside the city of Pittsburgh, with a view to getting assistance in a campaign. What the response to these overtures was is not disclosed. There have been other reports that the Judge would like to learn in advance the attitude he might encounter with the Republican organization.

* * *

Prefers Field Be Not Too Heavy

He is not and has not been averse to a fight, but naturally would prefer a campaign where the field would not be too heavy.

It is accepted that, should Judge Macfarlane become a candidate the number of attorneys who would enter the campaign would be reduced. This would be due to the fact that unseating a judge on the bench furnishes greater handicaps to an independent candidacy, than when the position is an open game.

However, two or three independents of strength might find it to their advantage as well to have the field reduced. There would be a better opportunity to concentrate behind them all sentiment which might be opposed to a sitting judge or judges.

If Judge Macfarlane runs it will mean that all three judges whose terms expire will be candidates in the primary. It is already known that Judges Harry Rowand and Ralph H. Smith, the latter appointed recently by Gov. Pinchot, intend to seek nomination.

* * *

Rowand and Smith Reported in Accord

Judges Rowand and Smith are understood to be in accord on a campaign. How they would view an opportunity to hook up with Judge Macfarlane—should the chance be offered—is speculative. Judge Rowand might team with the president judge, but it is doubtful if Judge Smith would, for some of the circles in which Judge Smith hopes to get votes probably would not be of any benefit to Judge Macfarlane.

It now seems assured that there will be three County Court places also to fill, or places of equal grade. This comes about through the proposed creation of a new Juvenile Court. Judge Benjamin Lencher and the man appointed to the vacancy caused by the death of the late Judge Paulson Foster will run in the primary.

If the Juvenile Court bill is signed by the Governor, in the form approved by Allegheny County legislators and civic organizations, there will be no appointment.

* * *

Enhanced Reputations Few During Session

There are few enhanced reputations emerging from this legislature. Man after man has endeavored to whip order out of the chaos, and the result has been only to further enmesh the House and Senate in a tangled maze. Rail against the fact as they may, the fact remains that the Republican organization leaders have found Gov. Pinchot an obstacle they could not surmount.

For a time it seemed the result of the conflict would be a stalemate, but as the session drones and staggers to an end it becomes apparent that the Governor has gotten most of what he wanted.

His adamant objections have completely junked the well press-agented legislative economy program. Representatives Ellwood Turner and A. J. White Hutton, as well as Speaker Talbot, toured the state to arouse sentiment in behalf of the economies embodied in the Turner bill. There were some merits in the measure, too, but the Governor did not approve them.

The bill did pass the House, but it lies buried in the Senate.

* * *

Right or Wrong, Pinchot Boss

The Sterling bills were hailed as meaning six millions in economies and a tightening of governmental efficiency. But their ultimate saving, if any, will be no more than three million dollars.

The Governor has had his way on beer legislation and the convention to consider repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In both Senate and House the Republican organization had working majorities, and started strongly by organizing both branches. But jealousies grew, the Governor pitted faction against faction, and he watches the session end with gleeful jubilation at the manner in which he has handcuffed those who affected to belittle his strength.

But, right or wrong, he has been boss, and boss over a rebellious crew which hates him, excoriates him in speeches on the floors of House and Senate, then goes to his office and meekly falls under his sway.

IMPROVEMENTS HERE HINGE ON WAGNER BILL

M'Govern May Seek Pinchot's Help to Get U. S. Loan

The County Commissioners today were to receive a report from their chief engineer, E. L. Schmidt, on projects to be included in the $20,000,000 improvement program planned for the county providing the Wagner bill is passed in Washington and the money can be obtained through a federal loan.

If the bill is passed and the loan can be negotiated at low interest, Chairman C. C. McGovern intends to apply for the necessary funds. He said he would go to Harrisburg as soon as the Legislature adjourns to seek the support of Gov. Pinchot.

It was also indicated Edgar J. Kaufmann, who recently discussed public improvements here with officials in Washington, may place the program directly before Washington officials.

Among the projects listed in the tentative program are the Wabash tube and bridge, the Homestead High Level and Highland Park bridges, extension of Ohio River boulevard to the Beaver County line; extension of the Stoops Ferry-Shousetown road to the Beaver County line; widening of Jerome avenue through McKeesport; extension of the Allegheny River boulevard to Hulton; routing of the Lincoln and William Penn highways westward from Wilkinsburg through improved highway to connect with Forward avenue and the Boulevard of the Allies; extension of Sawmill Run boulevard to the West End-North Side bridge; widening and improvement of Maytide street, Carrick, between Nobles Lane and Sawmill Run boulevard, and completion of the Wayman road from Overbrook into the South Park.

It is understood that to provide some means of paying back the loan, the Homestead and Highland Park spans would be toll bridges.

CHARGES BRIDE DESERTED HIM

Charging his wife refused to live with him after their marriage in Wellsburg, W. Va., Thomas G. McMahon, 1444 McFarland road, Mt. Lebanon, has asked Judge George V. Moore for a divorce from Mrs. Margaret McMahon. McMohan said:

"She told me she was sorry she had married."

BANKERS HERE DODGE VOTE ON INDORSING F. D.

'Mellon' Members on Board Said to Have Gagged Chaplin

Well—

The Pittsburgh Clearing House Association was to have voted on a resolution expressing confidence in the President at its meeting late yesterday. James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, was reported to have prepared such a resolution.

Then it became known that Andrew W. Mellon was in Washington to help lead the opposition to the administration inflation policy. What appeared to be a harmless resolution suddenly developed embarrassing possibilities for officials of the Mellon banks which constitute the dominant factor in the affairs of the clearing house.

This became a question of increasing interest as the time for the meeting approached.

The meeting lasted an hour. Mr. Chaplin emerged smiling and declared that any statement would have to be made by A. E. Braun, president of the Clearing House Association and president of Mr. Mellon's Farmers Deposit National Bank.

A short time later Mr. Braun appeared also smiling. He said:

"No resolution regarding President Roosevelt was presented."

Following the meeting it was learned from authentic sources that when Mr. Chaplin started to present his resolution Mr. Braun expressed the opinion that such action was not within the purview of the organization. He then asked each of the directors for his opinion. The Mellon directors, who constituted the majority, agreed. Most of the others did not comment.

The County's Plan to Right the Nadine 'Bungle'

HOW THE COUNTY PLANS TO CONDEMN WATER COMPANY'S LAND, MOVE THE P. R. R., COMPLETE THE RIVER BOULEVARD

The McGovern-tagged 'Nadine bungle'—the bottleneck between the Pennsylvania Water Company and P. R. R. tracks into which the two-years-old-but-never-opened Allegheny River boulevard ran under the direction of county engineers. Now, because the pumping station won't move its buildings, the county plans to condemn water company land near the river, give it to the P. R. R. to move its tracks and thus make room for the roadway. The road now is practically unused. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

SERVICE CLUBS' CHIEF JOINS IN TRIBUTE

Church Ceremonies Arranged; Templars To Hear Prayer

President's Day, to be observed throughout the nation next Sunday for the first time, today met the approval of Pittsburgh club and civic leaders.

M. Nirdlinger, architect and president of the Inter-Club Council, in which is centralized many of the activities of the service clubs of the district, spoke glowingly of President's Day.

In the Sheraden Methodist Episcopal Church, Chartiers avenue and Citadel street, a special President's Day service will be held. Attended by the Odd Fellows anniversary delegation, the Rev. Dr. J. D. Van Horn, pastor, will speak on "Our President Overcoming Hindrances." The services will begin at 8 p. m.

DOWNTOWN SERVICE

In a service at Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, members of Division No. 2, Knights Templar, will stand while Dean N. R. High Moor reads a special prayer for the President. The Knights will assemble in full regalia at 7 p. m. on Ross street and march to the church. Arthur S. Rodeniser is division commander. There are seven commanderies in the division, and approximately 5,000 men are on the rolls.

Mr. Nirdlinger, speaking of the day, said:

"Man can count the thrills he enjoys in a lifetime. I remember one and I anticipate one. The one I remember is Col. Lindbergh's flight to Europe. The one I anticipate is the privilege to participate in the nation's acknowledgement to our President next Sunday morning.

NATIONAL TRIBUTE

Throughout the nation, leading citizens in every field will participate in the day.

In Los Angeles, 30 units of uniformed organizations will parade prior to a mass meeting in the coliseum, with Elsie Janis, Harold Lloyd and Ann Harding, Tom Mix and Tony taking part.

In Atlanta, the head of the Salvation Army of the South called for observance of the day in 230 cities where the Salvation Army exists.

Governors Ferguson, of Texas, and Green, of Rhode Island, joined other Governors in proclaiming Sunday President's Day, while Bishop William T. Manning, Episcopal, of New York, and Msgr. William E. Cashin, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Andrew, added their commendations.

DOLLAR SAVINGS HELD TAX FREE

Deposits in the Dollar Savings Bank, a mutual savings institution without capital stock, are not subject to the county 4-mill personal property tax, Judge H. Walton Mitchell ruled today in Orphans' Court.

The decision refused the claim of the county for five years taxes from the estate of Jerry McCarty, 3413 Sunnyside street. McCarty, who had $10,078 in the bank, died intestate in 1929.

Ordinarily the county has the right to go back five years to assess personal property tax.

Judge Mitchell pointed out this bank pays dividends rather than interest, and deposits of the deceased are not included in any of the classes listed for taxation in the Act of 1913.

River Yields Body Of Missing Woman

The body of Mrs. Catherine Gledhill, 35, of 3303 Sloan street, was found in the Ohio River near Orchard street, Stowe Township, late yesterday. Morgue attaches said she disappeared from her home on the night of April 7.

Hotel Employes' Annual Dance Set

The annual dance of the William Penn Hotel employes will be held in the hotel May 23. Proceeds will be used for the summer camp in Beaver County. Harry Taylor is chairman of the committee.

FARMERS WAIT LOAN DECISION

MONTROSE, Pa., April 27.—(AP.)—Four hundred embattled farmers of Susquehanna County today were waiting further word from Washington regarding their demands for crop loan security modification.

They stormed the county Courthouse all day yesterday, protesting against giving chattel mortgages on their cattle and assigning monthly milk checks to the government as security for loans.

Wind-Jammers In Congress Off The Old Standard

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The longest speeches in Congress can now be engraved on the head of a pin with an icepick.

"I think—"
"It seems to me—"
"I arise to a point of order—"
"Mr. Speaker—"
"I yield the floor—"

These speeches are the lengthiest efforts of leather-chested, experienced orators. There ain't any more use of talking these days than there is of consulting your time table after the boat has sailed.

'Bungle' Solution Waits Grand Jury Action

The Public Service Commission will not attempt to settle the controversy over completion of Allegheny Valley boulevard until the May grand jury has had an opportunity to act on condemnation proceedings to be submitted to it May 8, it was indicated today. County officials, representatives of the utilities involved and the Public Service Commission viewed the Nadine "bottle neck" yesterday.

Although the Pennsylvania Water Company has filed a suit in equity asking an injunction to halt the condemnation proceedings, no date for a hearing has been set. The condemnation papers were filed in Quarter Sessions Court a week ago.

The Public Service Commission sent its engineers to look over the bungle yesterday at the request of Verona citizens who demanded that the commission intervene. The Verona group has consented to delay its hearing until the condemnation proceedings are passed upon by the grand jury.

Officials of Penn Township announced yesterday they would oppose any plan that did not give the township a road opening to the Allegheny River waterfront.

The only township road which reaches the river bank crosses the railroad at Nadine. By the plans of the engineers the road would be abandoned between the boulevard and the river.

SANDY APPEAL FUND GROWS

Mrs. Ethel Cannon's fund for condemned Sandy continued to grow today. A "Sandy Fund" has been opened in the Dollar Savings Bank, Fourth avenue, by Mrs. Mabel M. Artrip, treasurer of the movement. Her telephone is Hazel 5026-W.

More than $50 of the $250 necessary to appeal Judge S. L. Reed's decision to Superior Court has been subscribed, according to Mrs. Cannon. Mrs. Cannon asked that those interested in the movement deposit contributions in the Dollar Savings Bank.

Judge Reed is scheduled to return here from Cambria County, May 15, to sentence Frank Sechan, of Elder street, Elizabeth Township, owner of the dog. Sechan pleaded guilty to keeping a ferocious dog, and a condition of his parole was that he dispose of his dog. An appeal is planned to Superior Court.

POSTAL OUSTER BACKED HERE

Reversing the decison of their national association, the Pittsburgh Chapter of the National Letter Carriers' Association today had gone on record as favoring compulsory retirement for all postal employes who have served 30 years or more. The national association recently favored optional retirement.

On July 1, in accordance with an economy plan of President Roosevelt, 5,000 postal employes must be dismissed. If veteran employes are compelled to retire, the Pittsburgh chapter decided, the 5,000 can be made up of a group to whom pensions would be due.

GOLFERS HERE 'STRIKE' ON FEE

Protests against the 100 per cent increase in the greens fees at the county golf courses were far from stilled today as announcements of bargain golf came from other cities.

While a few, but only a few, golfers were plunking down $20 for permits to the county courses, news came that in Augusta, Kan., the town's council had voted to eliminate the fee altogether. In other words, free golf!

In nearby New Castle cut-rate golf will prevail. There the fee will be 10 cents for nine holes! If you want a season permit, $10.

In Pittsburgh only 20 permits have been sold in the first three days—a figure far below the buying rush of last year.

U. S. Holds Five On 'Dope' Charges

Five men were turned over to federal narcotic agents today by the South Side police. Four of them were found in a shanty near Richfield street with morphine. They were William Hoffman, 23, of Overbrook; James Slater, 22; Paul Slater, 18, and George Homovich, 21.

The fifth, Theodore Homovich, 23, of Castle Shannon, admitted having entered Central High School in Overbrook last night and was thought to have had accomplices. Nothing was stolen.

CROWD WALKS OUT ON CHIEF

When Fire Chief Herman Samuels, of Homestead, refused to leave a meeting of the Homestead Taxpayers' Association last night, the crowd rose in a body and silently filed from the hall.

Attorney A. C. Hepps spoke. He charged that there were over 3,500 phantom voters on the Homestead books.

Samuels, asked to reply, said:

"There are not 3,500 phantom voters on the lists now. Since Leo Riordan has been working most of them have been taken off."

Then Samuels accused members of the association of being "tax dodgers," and he was ordered to leave the meeting.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This labor woman Perkins looks like she is not only going to do something for labor, but is going to be a real contribution to women in politics. She has put common sense ahead of lip rouge, and the petticoat.

Will Rogers

See where the newspaper convention in New York (They are always holding a convention of some sort some place). Lord knows when they ever have time to write or read anything. Well, the rescals, regardless of politics, all were unanimous in saying there was a "better feeling." Well, a better feeling is all you want. If you feel better you are not going to die. Yours,

BETHEL TWP'S. FIREMEN ON MOVE AGAIN

The Bethel Township Volunteer Firemen will be "at home" tomorrow in their new location to any of their friends who want fires put out.

Yes, the boys are moving again. This makes their third home in four years. It's getting so the firemen won't take their hats off anymore.

Some folks think politics is back of all this moving, as the township is split into two factions over who shall put out the fires. But that's neither here nor there, although the firemen usually are.

Four years ago Justice of the Peace Charles Linepensil suggested, to put it mildly, the boys might move. So the volunteers lifted their one-story frame fire house across the street to the property of Dr. R. E. Sleppy and Dr. E. P. Sleppy, who had kindly invited them.

Since then the good doctors have died and just the other day the estate wrote the volunteers a letter, between fires, and—er, ahem and well—

So the volunteers are moving again, this time to a spot on old Bethel road which they bought some time ago. There's no place like home.

WILEY REVEALS AKRON DEFECTS

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Lieut. Com. H. V. Wiley, taking the stand at his own request this afternoon in the Naval inquiry of the Akron disaster, revealed that certain repairs to the Akron had not been completed when she started on her last flight.

He said:

"I knew of these repairs and had seen similar ones being made.

"It was not an urgent matter, and I thought they had been completed."

He did not specify the repairs in question.

FIND PAIR DEAD AFTER FIRE

MAYSVILLE, Ky., April 27.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Claiborne Fox, parents of County Attorney Andrew Fox, were found dead in bed here today after fire had damaged their first floor bedroom, but officials said it appeared they were dead before the fire partly burned them, and that keresone had been poured on the bed.

County Attorney Fox said he was sleeping on the second floor and was aroused by the smoke and fled, but could not return on account of the fire in time to save them.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(INS.)—Barbara Schwartz, 14, latest victim of a series of fiendish attacks upon children, hovered between life and death in a hospital while police and detectives pushed an intense manhunt for her assailant.

The girl, suffering a fractured jaw, possible fracture of the skull, and many bruises, was found unconscious in the basement of a house across the street from her home last night, an hour after she left home to visit a school chum.

Her father said he believes Barbara had been searching for a pet kitten which disappeared a few days ago.

RAY AS CANCER AID STUDIED

By LEIGH MATTESON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Motion picture views of short-wave ultra-violet rays in the act of damaging cancer cells and killing 15 types of germs were shown for the first time at the opening session today of the American Physical Society spring meeting.

The observed marked damage done to cancer cells by the rays, which are found in ordinary sunshine, may lead to employment of artificial ultra-violet rays on skin and mouth cancers, on which only surgery, radium and X-rays now are used.

Dr. Ellice McDonald, Rachel Franklin and A. J. Allen, of the University of Pennsylvania cancer research laboratory, obtained the unusual "micro-moving pictures" by fitting a microscope and camera with quartz glass lenses, through which the rays would penetrate.

Old Pals Parted As Milk Deal Collapses

Balog bought two cows and it wasn't long until their friendship ceased, it developed at a hearing last night before Alderman John K. Skinner, of McKeesport.

Under an agreement Bozniak was to keep the cows, the men sharing the feed bills and the milk.

Pie Tosser Arrested On Victim's Plaint

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP.)—Ellis Byrd allegedly hurled a lemon pie at Carl Hill, driver for a bakery, scoring a hit, temporarily blinding Hill and cutting short Hill's pursuit.

Came another day. This time a raspberry pie was thrown. A direct hit was scored, but it lacked blinding qualities. Hill took him to a police station.

'WALK-OUT' JAP ENVOY HOME

TOKIO, April 27.—(AP.)—Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate who walked out on the League of Nations sessions on the Chino-Japanese controversy, came home triumphantly today while Japan gave a huge demonstration of national solidarity and popular approval of the conquest of Manchuria.

He said the Japanese people do not realize the seriousness of Japan's situation in the family of nations.

A striking Shinto ceremony at Yasukuni shrine for the souls of those who fell in battle for the empire in the last year was coupled with Matsuoka's homecoming, and the whole nation observed a holiday.

DRUNKEN BEAR SCARES TOWN

ELKINS, W. Va., April 27.—(AP.)—A woman fainted, a fisherman dived from the banks of the Tygarts Valley River into the icy water and scores of other South Elkins residents sought safety in their homes last night all because of a pet cub bear which found a quart of moonshine liquor.

No one knows where or how the bear got the liquor. All that is known is that he broke his leash and started wobbling toward the State Odd Fellows' Home Park.

Rex Houchlin, Elkins High School teacher, and owner of the cub, called a pack of hounds to aid him and caught up with Master Bruin standing against a large tree with his paws against the trunk, too dizzy to climb and too numb to run.

U. S. TO PROBE BANK RUMORS

CLEVELAND, April 27.—(AP.)—E. R. Fancher, governor of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank, announced last night the United States Treasury Department had advised him it has detailed a special corps of federal investigators to this city to "investigate false and malicious rumors about Cleveland banks."

In another statement Fancher said that all Cleveland banks which have been licensed since the national banking holiday "are sound" and "will have the full support of the Federal Reserve Bank."

His announcement followed a dramatic action taken yesterday by Harris Creech, president of the Cleveland Trust Company, largest Cleveland bank, when a number of depositors started withdrawing their money.

Creech clambered to the top of a counter and told those in the lobby of the main office they could have two extra hours after the regular closing time to withdraw their money if they wanted it. The depositors greeted his remarks with applause and some of their numbers departed.

POOR QUIZ PAY FIGHT IN COURT

The Superior Court today heard the arguments for and against the payment of the board of visitors appointed by Judge James H. Gray to investigate the Allegheny County Board of Poor Directors.

Mortimer B. Lesher, assistant county solicitor, argued Judge Gray had exceeded his authority in fixing compensation at $1,500 each for the visitors, Attorneys G. M. McDonald, E. H. Wicks and Paul E. Hutchinson.

The group spent two months in auditing the affairs of the Poor Board and discovered evidence dealing for the most part with the purchase of real estate and insurance for the County Home at Woodville, that led to a surcharge action still pending.

County Commissioners had refused to pay the visitors because payment was not provided in the act of 1852, and Judge W. H. McNaugher agreed with them in blocking a mandamus.

WOMAN SAVED IN RIVER BATTLE

RANGOON, Burma, April 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. M. T. Risch, American passenger on the steamship Koroa, owes her life to the fact she is a good swimmer.

She had an alarming experience last night when she hired a sampan to go to Rangoon from the ship. The Chittagonian rower started off in the opposite direction and refused to return despite orders and entreaties.

He snatched Mrs. Risch's handbag and pushed her overboard at a point where the river was wide and the current strong.

Mrs. Risch's swimming ability stood in good stead and she finally scrambled aboard again. A struggle ensued and the man was tipped into the river. The sampan drifted downstream and Mrs. Risch was taken aboard the steamer, which was lying at anchor. Her assailant was arrested.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Little Mary Booth, small daughter of the William Booths, of Sewickley, has had to part with one of her Easter gifts. She asked the Easter bunny for two live little chickens.

But one of the chickens turned out to be a young rooster, who insisted upon practicing his crowing night and day.

* * *

The Booths have a stray dog, Rover, shown in the picture at the top of the page with Mrs. Booth, which they are going to give away although they are very fond of it. They already have one dog who boasts a family of 41. I hasten to add that the Booths haven't kept them all.

* * *

Although they'd prefer to live in the charming white cottage next to their large brick home, they have to live in the larger house because they can rent the little one and not the big one.

Memos I Forgot to Remember

Can't recall a more hilarious event than that one last Sunday after the midnight hour at the Paradise Club which toasted Edward Cantor and James Durante, two of the land's better Pagliaccis . . . A friendly audience it was . . . All of whom seemed most affectionate in their response to these grand gentlemen of the show shops . . . If only there were a few more like them.

Wonder how true it is? . . . That Harry Warner, the one member of that movie tribe who rates great esteem from his fellows, is plotting to rid himself of his colleagues, kin or not . . . And that he would like to ally himself with others and bring the Paramount-Publix Theaters back to prestige . . . William Wellman, who takes on wives and pays them off faster than any human being, is about to take his fourth matrimonial dive. The other three got paid off at the rate of $30,000, $40,000 and $45,000.

It appears that George Gernard Shaw's razzing of Americans was merely putting us all on the scold standard . . . Not many locals know that Cardinal Hayes sent his check for $100 to the Association for the Jewish Blind . . . It was a new adventure Sunday night . . . Witnessing Master Berle for the first time on a public platform . . . It was at the affair which honored Cantor and Durante . . . This young comedian, who has taken a severe bombardment of abuse from here and other parapraphers, convulsed the spectators for a dozen minutes or more . . . His "laughs" came more swiftly than light or sound circumnavigates the globe . . . And so, as I rocked in my pew at the insane routines, the illusion was melted . . . I mean the legend that Berle borrows his contemporaries' quips . . . Now, I don't care . . . Because none of them was ever as gay as he was Monday morning.

Handed me a laugh—that paragraph by Ted Cook . . . In which he introduced Dr. James M. Doran, "to whom the government has intrusted the job of keeping racketeers out of the beer business . . . It has been freely predicted that if Dr. Doran makes good—he will immediately be given a chance to keep the fish out of the ocean" . . . Izzy Elinson is in a gay mood today, too . . . A taxpayer, he observes, is a fellow who saves all year for a rainy day—and then gets soaked by the Government! . . . Izzy also avers that even Peggy Joyce is on the rocks. And that he can remember all the way back when the rocks were on Peggy! . . . One reader, who saves these notes, forwards a paragraph written here ever so many columns ago . . . In 1930, I think . . . I had poked a movie magazine in the ribs—for offering such a ridiculous item as this—that Frank Fay, the actor, had two night clubs named after him—"The El Fey" in New York and Miami . . . At the time I noted that those night places were christened after Larry Fay, a taxicab and night club impresario . . . Most interesting, though, is the observation that according to the dictionary the word "Fey" means one "who is destined for a sudden death!" . . . Fay was murdered recently.

Might as well explain it now . . . I mean why in recent pillars I have avoided recording "news" of "Tilly Blank" who might be romancing with some sax-tooter from Abe Lyman's or anybody's band . . . In the last six months I found that in reading such items elsewhere—I was uninterested . . . Because, I suppose, I found that most of the time I didn't know them nor had I ever heard of them! . . . And so it dawned on me that my readers found the same lines elusive—when I reported them . . . And the very thought frightened me! . . . If, I thought, I can't get interested in the activities of these obscure romances, etc., there must be many readers who find them so much ho-hum in my pillar . . . And so henceforth they will be found only in the departments of my fellows, to whom I will them . . . Eleanor Boardman Vidor was the first woman ever to make King Vidor "kick in." The courts gave her $500,000 of his loot . . . The Sidney ("Kid from Spain") Franklins are not kidding . . . Mrs. F. is establishing a residence in Reno for that purpose.

Local Marionette Expert Tells of Doll Actors 8,000 Years Old

By GEORGE SEIBEL

While Pittsburgh is waiting for Vittorio Podrecca's Marionette Theater, which comes to the Nixon next week, it is worth while knowing that one of the world's greatest authorities on marionettes is a Pittsburgher—Garrett Becker, of the North Side. He designs and manufactures acting dolls, and probably knows more about the history of this quaint theatrical sideshow than anyone else on earth. He is writing a book on marionettes, and traces their origin back to China 8,000 years ago.

Mr. Seibel

It appears that these mechanical dolls were used in the religious ceremonials of ancestor worship. In those remote ages, when a great mandarin died, his wife and most of his household were buried with him. It wouldn't do to send him alone on his journey to the mysterious hereafter.

Finally one wise man, as his end drew near, had a happy and kindly thought. Why should my relatives be killed, he reasoned, and be buried beside me, when painted images of them would do me just as much good. So he had lifelike figures of his favorite spouse and his faithful servants made, and these were carried in the funeral procession. Many of these figures have been found in old dynastic graves, and Garrett Becker has hundreds of photographs showing they could be manipulated in a lifelike way.

Gounod, who composed the "Funeral March of a Marionette," unconsciously hit on a historic fact. The first marionettes were carried in funeral processions, and Herodotus, "Father of History," saw something like this in Egypt, about 450 B. C.

But the march of the marionettes to conquer the world was westward from China. From religious ceremonials they were adopted as entertainment, first by the Japanese, then by the Burmese, Siamese, Hindus, Persians, and so on to Africa, Egypt, Rome, Greece, Turkey and the Balkans. Naturally they would migrate in these directions because the trade routes were developing this way.

When Mongolians went traveling, they carried marionettes with them as part of their religious and entertainment material. When these travelers finally reached what is now France, it is evident the marionettes were received with enthusiasm, for we have found a number of prehistoric graves with figures which were buried with the deceased, these having identifying characteristics similar to the Asiatic marionettes of the same periods.

Signor Vittorio Podrecca, who brings his marvelous Italian marionettes to Pittsburgh, has embarked upon a world tour which lasted 10 years. Carrying 14 tons of theatrical properties, a portable stage—even a miniature switchboard—and 800 wooden actors—he has traveled by sled in Norway, by fishing smack in the Adriatic, by donkey in the Pyrenees, by camel in the Sahara, by train, truck and airplane in other parts of the world.

His company of 23 manipulators and singers have been with him all this time. The manipulators stand on a hidden bridge and pull the strings that infuse miraculous life into the wood-and-paint actors. The singers provide dialogue and songs, resulting in complete illusion and enchantment. As one New York Critic put it, these Piccoli performers put the human race to shame; after them, the so-called human race had best look to its laurels.

Podrecca has been awarded the French Legion of Honor and been decorated by Mussolini for his achievements in playing to 10,000,000 people, including Il Duce, who is a playwright and has always wanted to be an actor himself.

Author

Leo A. Levy, Pittsburgh lawyer, has written a play, "It Happened Tomorrow," which will have its premiere in the Ritz Theater, New York, next week.

Claudette Colbert Given Stellar Role

Claudette Colbert has been switched from a tentative assignment in "Disgraced," to the stellar role in Paramount's "Torch Singer," to go into production shortly. Helen Twelvetrees, as the result of her role in Chevalier's "A Bedtime Story," will be given the "Disgraced" assignment, under the direction of Stuart Walker, from an original by Alice D. G. Miller.

Pop Concerts on Lawn Plan for Summer

A series of popular musical events at intervals throughout the summer is being arranged. They will be held on the lawn of the Hotel Schenley, where similar concerts were given some years ago. There will be a little symphony orchestra of about 30 pieces, under the direction of Victor Saudek, long a feature of local orchestral broadcasts. About the middle of June is the time tentatively set for the opening of the concerts, that will be given probably three times weekly, with programs of worth-while music.

Greta Signs Contract

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer definitely announces that Greta Garbo has signed a new long-term contract with this company, and will resume picture work on her return to Hollywood. Her first film will be "Queen Christina," an original story with a Swedish background.

Miss Garbo's plans have been a topic of constant speculation among picture followers ever since her return to Sweden last summer. When she sailed from New York last August, the Swedish actress refused to commit herself on the question of her return to pictures. She said at this time that she was returning to her native land for a complete rest, and refused to amplify this statement in any way. In consequence various conflicting rumors had been circulated.

Gala to Mark Opening Of Arliss Film

Gala festivities, a la Hollywood, will attend the opening of the new George Arliss film, "The Working Man," in the Stanley, at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening, May 4. "Elmer The Great" will close at 6 o'clock on that date and the box office will reopen at 7:30 p. m., for the Arliss picture. Persons prominent in civic, social and official life will attend, and there will be broadcasting from the lobby of the theater as motion picture cameras "shoot" the scenes.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Vittorio Podrecca, who made the little puppet show large, and famous, is a Venetian, who, on graduating from the University of Padua, served as art critic and editor in Rome. Since childhood he had dreams of a super-marionette theater, so he rented a cellar in Rome in 1915, erected a stage, and decorated the interior according to his own ideas. That was in 1915. Italy, with most of Europe, was at war, and he was in the service of his country. The conflict had played hob with the opera and the regular theater. Gloom was in the atmosphere, soldiers home on leave were in the streets. Children and women were the first to respond to the posters announcing the opening the Teatro Dei Piccoli, but soldiers and civilians were not slow to find out that at last there was some amusement even in wartime. Next it attracted attention of the "society" of Rome, and after that no famous artist or writer visited Rome that winter without becoming acquainted with "The Piccoli." Our own people will have that opportunity next week, when the marionettes give their show in the Nixon nightly and at the customary matinees.

* * *

George M. Cohan, who'll be here the week of May 8 in his new play, "Pigeons and People," is looking toward next season with tunes humming in his ears. When they and the story come out the result will be "The Little Fellar," a musical piece that will have no chorus. Incidentally, Mr. Harry Brown informs that mail orders for the Cohan engagement already are coming in.

Broadways Of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Two Days from Home

EN ROUTE TO BROADWAY—A few more impressions of the latter portion of my world trip will probably serve as well as anything in this space. So:

Over in Rangoon, Burma, I went on a buying spree. I had been told about a place called Scott's market, where they sell everything from a pen wiper to a corn cure. And the prices were supposed to be so reasonable that they practically paid you to take the stuff away. All foreign markets are like that—until you try to buy something.

Well, what do you suppose Hellinger went for? The one thing that I needed least in the world was a Buremese table, and it would be the most difficult thing to get back. So, naturally, that's what I picked out. And not one—but seven of them.

I just couldn't help myself. The tables had all sorts of dizzy little carvings and gadgets—and the tiny Burmese salesgirl, in a most mysterious English, told me that I couldn't get anything like them anywhere else in the world. So I went for seven of them; said seven probably being the worst in the place.

The price for the lot came to about $20 in our money, and it certainly covered the biggest mess of junk anybody ever bought for $20. I tumbled the entire works into a car and took the stuff over to Cook's office for shipping. And there I learned that my original investment was only a sort of down payment.

For the box to carry the tables to America, the cost came to about $10. Tips and carrying ran to about $5. The freight charges to America came to about $20. Since you can get no receipt in a local market, the customs boys will probably give me a $35 duty when the tables reach the dock in Jersey—and then I'll have to pay an express company to get it to my home in New York.

And what will be the net result? When I open the box I will undoubtedly break a few fingers. I will find that the tables have been ruined by the long voyage. And the first lady who sees them will unquestionably tell me that I could have bought the same thing in any Woolworth store...

In Bangkok, Siam, 60 per cent of the population is Chinese. Many of them are among the town's foremost merchants; and many are the rickshaw pullers of the town. Strange to have a capital city contain more foreigners than natives—but Bangkok is a town of great contrasts no matter how you look at it.

In some respects, it is a highly progressive city. The train service that takes you there provides the most comfortable service in the entire world. The newspapers are Americanized, and you sense the fact as you go about that this is a city and a nation to be reckoned with in the general scheme of things.

Yet it is one of the few nations in the world that permits open house for opium smokers. In British-controlled territory, no man can hit the pipe unless he is a registered smoker—and then the rule applies only to Chinese and not to white men.

But in Bangkok, the situation is wide open. There are at least 10 smoke shops in town, and any visitor can take his choice. The places are all upon the main thoroughfares and there is no attempt at secrecy whatsoever. The pills have been purchased direct from the government and, when a Chinese or a white man enters the place, he is handed his pipe immediately.

Hundreds of Chinese, naked but for a pair of trousers, recline on long tables and kick the gong around to their hearts' content. The large shops have two and three floors exactly the same; the smaller places but one. The stench is terrible, the sight unbelievable.

The hold that opium has upon the population is amazing. Your rickshaw puller, for example, earns about 40 cents a day in our money. For that sum, he must race through the hot streets in the burning sun—it was 103 degrees when I was there—from dawn until evening. Sometimes he pulls one person and sometimes two.

Of this 40 cents he pays exactly half to the man who rents him the rickshaw. His three meals through the day—all of them rice—cost him three cents as a total. His lodging may cost him a cent or two a day. And with the possible 15 cents that remains from his torturous day's labor he purchases his opium pill and dreams of the millions that are his for an hour.

He lives for nothing else . . .

While in Siam, I requested a Siamese gentleman to show me a typical Siamese dance. I had heard a great deal about them and I had even seen one or two at private parties in New York. But now I was on the home territory and I wanted the authentic thing.

My friend was only too happy to arrange matters for me.

"We will go to the Siam hotel about 11 o'clock," he said. "There is a cabaret there and any number of Siamese dancers. I can promise you an interesting evening."

Promptly at 11, I was seated in the Siam hotel. The manager, although he spoke no English, was most gracious to me and informed me through my friend that he would have his best girl sing and dance for me as the next number. I sank back to enjoy the experience.

Out came a little Siamese girl, a cute baby if ever I saw one. I smiled. And then, as I waited for this breath of old Siam, the girl sang "Red Hot Mamma" in very loud fashion and finished up with a Charleston! . . .

Hongkong is dead. From all I had heard and read, I thought it would be one of the wildest places I would strike. I was mistaken. They fold up the sidewalks promptly at 12 o'clock and the town is then about as exciting as Philadelphia on a Sunday afternoon.

More, as in so many places in which the Brit[illegible] are concerned, the people are pretty stiff and formal. If you're in with them, you're okay. But if you're not, you can go daffy in Hongkong trying to find a s[illegible].

When I boarded my boat for Shanghai, I complained to one of the ship's officers about the people I had met. He nodded wisely and patted me on the shoulder.

"You can say it again, Mr. Hellinger," he murmured. "There's only one port in the world that's just as bad, and that's New York."

I asked him what he meant.

"Just this," he went on. "There are two things that I don't like. One is to be in New York and know nobody. And the other is to be in Hongkong and know everybody!" . . .

M-G-M Signs Jeanette

NEW YORK, April 27.—(Universal.)—When Jeanette MacDonald returns to America this summer the lightning of stardom will have struck twice in the same place. In addition to her earlier United Artists contract, she has assumed her position as a star in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer firmament, it was announced today.

The Metro agreement was executed last week-end when Jeanette interrupted a brief Parisian vacation to visit the Riviera as guest of Irving Thalberg and Norma Shearer, who are resting at Antibese. The contract carries the cabled sanction of Louis B. Mayer, and nominates Jeanette as star of three forthcoming Metro movies.

First of these is to be a screen version of last season's successful musical, "The Cat and The Fiddle," and Ramon Novarro will interpret the role created by Georges Metaxa in the Broadway production. Ramon is now following the trail blazed by Jeanette, and is singing his way through Europe under the guidance of Robert G. Ritchie, the manager and fiance of Miss MacDonald.

Following "The Cat and the Fiddle," Jeanette is to be starred in "I Married an Angel," and "The Merry Widow."

Intrepid Men of Newsreel To Be Shown at Work In Photoplay

BY HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Youth will be served by RKO in the adventure film the studio plans to build around the thrills of covering news with the cameras.

For "Newsreel," the name of the picture, they have signed three lively players. They are the dynamic William Gargan, the vital Arline Judge and boyish Eric Linden, all three members of Hollywood's younger, energetic school of actors.

The trio will act a story which covers all phases of drama, comedy and love behind the lenses of the newsreel men. The production will be made from an original story by Harold Shumate, adapted for the screen by Agnes Christine Johnson and Allen Rivkin. Otto Brower will sit on the director's camp-chair.

To create sharp realism in "Newsreel," the studio is drawing on experiences recorded in letters from Pathe cameramen all over the world.

Irene Biller, 26, was one of Hungary's favorite musical comedy stars. She sang a Lehar operetta 250 times running in Budapest. Some months ago she left Hungary to come to America. She hired a school teacher to help her with her English, studied for American citizenship, and now emerges from her self-enforced obscurity to do a role in Fox's "The American," which co-features Spencer Tracy and Zita Johann.

This story, based on the life of the late Mayor Cermak, will be Miss Biller's first American picture. It is likely that Fox will groom her for musicals.

Nils Asther is the first one to be off with the biking fad. He's now doing a daily work-out on foot along the bridle paths. Otherwise the velocipede craze continues. Lee Tracy now pedals between the studio and his Beverly Hills home. Herman Manklewitz held a bicycle serenade outside Dave Epstein's window at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. . . Irene Dunne is off to New York for four weeks. . . William Farnum will play a comedy role in the next Masquers short. . . . The Marx Bros. have left for New York to talk over "Off Thee I Sing" with Authurs, Kaufman and Riskind. The musical satire will likely be their next . . . another joyous party is en route for New York. In it are Gene Fowler, Director and Mrs. Norman Taurog, and Benjamin and Mrs. (Sharon Lynn) Glazer. They go by canal. En route, among other things, the script of Chevalier's next picture, "The Way to Love," will be dealt with. The script-writing party will meet Maurice when he arrives from Europe May 6 and come back with him by train. . . Helen Gahagan and Melvyn Douglas postcard their amazement from Palestine over the resemblance that country—outside of the Arabs—bears to Los Angeles. . . Saw Colleen Moore dancing with husband, Al Scott, a huge nest of charms hanging on her wrist. Mary Duncan was with Laddie Sanford, Leslie Howard, with Mrs. Howard, Greta Nissen, with Weldon Heyburn, and Charles Farrell squired Virginia Valli. A threesome was Bruce Cabot, Sandra Shaw and Jack La Rue, and another trio was John Considine, Jr., Mrs. Edgar Selwyn and Mrs. Edmund Goulding. Jean Crawford dropped in with Franchot Tone to two-step and that nice romantic couple, Clarence and Mrs. (Alice Joyce) Brown danced.

P. WANER SWINGS OLD HAL CHASE BATS

THE ABSENCE OF Hal Chase has been termed a good thing for baseball in general, and now it may turn out to be a good thing for the Pittsburgh club in particular. For a number of bats made to Chase's model, long out of use for well-known reasons, but valuable because of their well-seasoned wood, have fallen into the hands of Paul Waner, and when Paul has a bat to his liking he is one of the biggest assets in the game and the dread of every pitcher who has to face him.

Paul Waner

During a visit to the Louisville bat factory, while the Pirates were playing an exhibition game in that city before the pennant race started, the elder Waner was browsing around among the old sticks and came across a lot of Chase clubs. They were not of Paul's model, of course, and the name is taboo in organized baseball, but the Buccaneer larruper viewed them as prizes because of the years of seasoning the wood had received. So on account of the wood value, he ordered a dozen of them turned into his own model, and the old bludgeons are likely to play a strong part in the Pirates' pennant drive. Big Poison, incidentally, appears to be headed for one of his best years. He is heavier than ever before, scaling 161 pounds, and is off to a most promising start, having made a better record than any other Pittsburgh batter to date in one respect by failing to hit safely in one one out of nine games.

IN JOINING THE Giants, George Uhle adds one more member to the growing colony of former American League players in the National loop. Men who received their major league training or most of it in the younger circuit are becoming numerous in the Heydler organization. The list includes even three of the eight managers, in Donie Bush, of the Reds; Gabby Street, of the Cardinals, and Burt Shotton, of the Phillies. George Gibson once coached the Senators and Charley Grimm started with the A's.

The Pirates took on a former American League star this season in signing Waite Hoyt. The Dodgers augmented what was already a whole flock by bringing in Joe Judge and Lu Blue to join Lefty O'Doul, Jack Quinn, Fred Heimach, Owen Carroll, Joe Shaute and Val Picinich. Walter Beck, too, was once with the Browns. The Reds have Lee Durocher, Harry Rice and Clyde Manion. The Braves have Bill Hargrave, Tom Zachary, Harry Seibold and Art Shires, the Cubs Mark Koenig, Riggs Stephenson, Babe Herman and Harvy Hendrick, and the Giants Bill Shores.

THERE HAS BEEN a lot of shifting the other way, too. No fewer than five of the managers in the American are former National Leaguers. They are Connie Mack, Joe McCarthy, Bill Killefer, Lew Fonseca and Joe Cronin.

Players who used to be with National League clubs include George Haas, Roy Spencer, Urban Faber, Johnny Grabowski, Tommy Thevenow, Lee Roy Mahaffey, Alvin Crowder and Evar Swanson. Several coaches such as Jewel Ens and Jimmy Burke have traveled both ways. And in each league there are many players who once had brief trials in the other.

ONE BIG LEAGUER who thinks the Yankees are going to have plenty of trouble beating out the Senators for the American League pennant is Jewel Ens, former Pirate manager now coaching the Reds. Ens was a coach for Detroit last season and had a good chance to study the league. He believes Washington's improved pitching staff, plus a tight defense otherwise, will make it tough for the Yanks to come home in front. The Senators' victories over the world champions this week didn't surprise Jewel a bit. In the infield the former Buc pilot gives the Yankees the advantage only at first base. He even courts the wrath of Bronx fans by rating the now suspended Buddy Myer even with Tony Lazzeri.

Silas Johnson

THE REDS HAVE contributed one of the sensations of the spring by defeating the Cardinals in their first two meetings and holding them to a single run in 18 innings of play, and a surprised fandom is wondering whether the two Cincinnati victories were just a flash or really signaled the rout of a long-standing jinx.

When Red Lucas shut out the Cards with two hits in their initial tilt of 1933 he upset an old hoodoo, for the Missourians annually have waxed fat on Cincinnati fare. Lucas' victory was only the fifteenth scored by the Reds over the Cards in 89 straight games since 1928. Yesterday Silas Johnson won another, 2 to 1, and made is 16 out of 90. St. Louis won the final game in 1928, 18 out of 21 in 1929, 10 out of 22 in 1930, 20 out of 22 in 1931 and 16 out of 22 last year.

FROM JUNE 1, 1930, to May 24, 1931, the Cards defeated the Reds 18 times in succession. The Reds did not win a game in St. Louis in more than two years. Following a victory there on April 22, 1929, they did not win again until May 31, 1931.

At the start of a season, in particular, the Cards usually have found the Reds soft picking. In 1931 they took the first five games. So the victories of Lucas and Johnson this spring lead Cincinnati fans to hope that things have changed. The Pirates appear to have taken the Cincinnati play away from the Cards this spring, judging from their success in grabbing their first four Red engagements.

IF EITHER ILLINOIS or Indiana will consent to be the opposition, Ohio State will put on a night track meet in the Buckeye stadium at Columbus on May 26. A novel lighting arrangement is planned. The 11 huge lights employed for night practice each fall by the Ohio State football squad will be rigged up on a three-foot wall that runs in front of the stadium seats, giving the field and running track the effect of an immense theater, with the spectators sitting in the darkness.

WITHIN A SHORT but tragic period, automobile smashups have run up a record list of casualties in the sports world, though except for Bob Carey and Byron Saulpaugh, the victims have been prominent figures in other branches rather than racing drivers. Locally, Jimmy Rooney, former Pitt football star, has not yet recovered fully from serious injuries suffered when Irish Kane, boxing manager, was fatally hurt.

George Saling, Olympic high-hurdle champion, and Addison Barnett, Stanford freshman basketball captain, were killed. Bill Carr, Olympic 400-meters champion and world's greatest quarter-mile runner, suffered injuries that ended his racing career. Charles Scheifley, Minnesota track captain, was severely hurt in the knees and ankles; Clifford Davis, Kansas Wesleyan football player, suffered a fractured skull, and an entire school basketball team met death in a bus smash.

THE SUCCESS OF his tour with Max Schmeling, now almost ended, has given Jack Dempsey another idea which he plans to carry out if Schmeling is victorious over Max Baer on June 8 and is then matched with Jack Sharkey for a title fight under Dempsey's promotion.

Seaman Watson

Jack figures he could help the old bankroll and at the same time steam up the championship fight by going on another exhibition trip with Schmeling, but this time he would box the German instead of merely acting as referee.

NO DOUBT IT will be just as good a fight, but the featherweight championship battle between Kid Chocolate and Seaman Watson will hardly draw as well on May 12 as it would have drawn if held on the original date a couple of months ago. That's how changed conditions may affect the pulling power of a ring card. To be a financial success, a match must be attractive in itself, of course, but much also depends on the situation, the right spot. The Chocolate-Watson affair was hot after the Seaman stirred up a lot of enthusiasm by beating Fidel La Barba, and would have packed the New York Garden, but interest in it has cooled a bit since that time and the delay in putting it on probably will make a difference in the receipts. At that, Watson rates the title chance above the money he will get out of the show. His manager, Charley Harvey, says he has rejected almost a dozen proposals from Pittsburgh, Chicago, Boston, Cleveland and other spots.

PIRATES MAY KEEP BILL BRUBAKER

LOCAL ENTRIES DEFEATED IN SEMI-FINALS

BOSTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Almost crushed by midwestern man power in the trials, the Eastern talent, in the national A. A. U. boxing championship tournament last night put on a stirring last-ditch series of battles to gain five of the eight prized titles from the pick of the nation's amateur battlers.

After the final bout on the three-day program, during which a total of 107 boxers were in action for 19 hours, the East's share of the honors included the 118, 126, 135 160 and heavyweight titles.

The remaining championships went to Chicago and Cleveland, the former team gaining the 147-pounds and light heavyweight triumphs and the Northeastern Ohio group, which placed five of its seven men in the semi-finals, had to be contented with the 112-pound crown.

MAREK BEATS WILSON

Max Marek, 19-year-old college freshman from Chicago, defeated Frank Wilson, of Boston, to win the light-heavyweight title by a wide margin.

Izzy Richter, of Philadelphia, stopped the sensational drive of Paul Ambers, Detroit Negro, outpointing him by a wide margin to gain the heavyweight final victory. Tom Chester, New York Negro middleweight, slapped and mauled his way to the championship at the expense of hard-working William Treest, of Chicago.

EAGAN OUTSTANDING

Tony Valore, of Cleveland, trounced Charley Green, New York Negro, in the 112-pound division final.

The East gained its second championship under something of a cloud, the decision that awarded the 118-pound title to Angelo Tardugno, the Italian-American boy representing the Jewish Community Center of Washington, at the expense of Willard (Mickey) Walker, of Pratt, Kan., being roundly jeered.

Another Kansas battler was shaded in the 126-pound final, for Louis Barisano, of Boston, had the narrowest of margins over Bus Breese, of Kansas State College, after three fast rounds.

The two Pittsburgh district boxers to gain the semi-finals met defeat in their bouts last night. Leo Sweeney, of the Pittsburgh Boys' Club, was the victim of a technical knockout at the hands of Breese and Sammy Angott, of Washington, Pa., who won his first and quarter-final round bouts by knockouts, was outpointed by William Walker, of Kansas.

HOPPE AGAIN SETS RECORD

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP.)—Willie Hoppe, of New York, established a new world record for high run in carom billiards last night by clicking off 53 points in the twentieth inning of his special match against Jake Schaefer, of San Francisco. Hoppe won the block, 250 to 150 in 22 innings.

It was the second time in two nights that the record high run was broken. Schaefer broke the world record of 38, which stood for 50 years, Tuesday night with a high run of 39.

State Rules Set For Mushball Play

Pennsylvania Mushball and Playground Ball Association rules, the standard for mushball in this section, will be used in the Western Pennsylvania championship mushball tourney. The tourney has been sanctioned by the association and the fact that 12 counties will be eligible to compete for the title this year has added interest to the affair that gets under way June 5.

To date, more than 100 teams have entered.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: GEN. LEE—The Civil War presented a paradox in the persons of its commanders. While the war was ostensibly fought over the question of slavery, it was strange that Gen. Lee, the Confederate leader, should have been an abolitionist at heart, while his opponent, Gen. Grant, in his own words, "was never an abolitionist, nor even what could be termed a protagonist of anti-slavery." It is a curious fact that Gen. Lee had freed all the slaves he owned in his own right (Page's "R. E. Lee," page 37) years before the Civil War, while Gen. Grant, who married the daughter of a Missouri slave-holder, continued to own two personal slaves almost to the end of the war. THE HOUSE OF SPEED—The house built in 12 hours was constructed by W. C. Carl, contractor, and a gang of 31 laborers, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. The foundation, the framework, floor beams, roof sheathing, rafters, sashes, clapboards and chimney were completed at 5 p. m. Between 5 and 8 p. m. furniture was moved in, gas and electricity, hot and cold water were installed and, at 8 p. m. the four-room house with reception hall, bath and closets was ready for immediate occupancy.

LONDOS CHAMP IN STATE

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—The claim of Joe Savoldi to the world heavyweight wrestling championship has been denied by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission who ruled that Jim Londos retains his title ranking in the Keystone state.

After a three-hour hearing yesterday and a lengthy executive session, the Pennsylvania Athletic governing body threw out the claim of the former Notre Dame star and decided that Londos would still be recognized as champion in Pennsylvania.

The hearing was called at the request of Londos after a recent bout in Chicago in which the referee ruled that "Jumping Joe" had thrown the Greek. The Illinois athletic solons upheld the referee's decision and Savoldi subsequently claimed the title in Pennsylvania.

Both grapplers were present at the hearing, each vehement in his contention that he was champion. Londos reiterated his claim that no fall had been scored in the Chicago bout, while Savoldi declared he had pinned his opponent.

McKnights to Face Heidelberg Eleven

The outstanding soccer game of the week-end will be flashed at South Park Sunday afternoon, when Heidelberg and the Shannon McKnights clash in the semi-final round of the West Penn cup. The winner will meet Curry for the title.

Saturday, Union Switch meets Coverdale in the benefit cup competition and the same tourney finds Local Union and De Marco playing at Silent Brook Field, South Park, on Sunday. This game is scheduled for 1:30 o'clock, so that the fans will be able to take in the Heidelberg-McKnight contest.

ITALIAN RIDERS LEAD

BOSTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Hard riding with plenty of sprints caused an almost complete shakeup in the standing of riders in the Boston Garden's six-day bicycle race and placed De Filippe and Panattiere in first place at 8 a. m. today. The Italian team had a lead of one lap on the team of Spencer and Walthour, although the Americans had 166 points more than the leaders.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

BOSTON, April 27.—So many customers don't understand this off-the-gold-standard business. I will explain it.

Nick Altrock

Roosevelt said:

"What's the matter with our money situation?"

The experts said:

"The other nations have got two strikes on us and the umpire is either blind or cheating."

Roosevelt said:

"In other words, we have only one strike left and we need a homer over the fence."

The experts said:

"Correct."

So that's when Roosevelt put the rabbit ball into the game, and did things pop then! The foreign nations claimed the homer was a foul and wanted to kill the umpire. Roosevelt just smiles and orders the experts to print up more rain checks and use 'em for money. So that's the situation in a coconaut shell.

Roosevelt not only knocked out a home run in the ninth with two men gone, but he caught the European statesmen off base. And from now on, the schedule looks rosy. Uncle Sam is playing the rest of his games on the home grounds.

Geneva Athletes Leave for Relays

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., April 27.—Seven Geneva College athletes departed this morning for the Penn relays at Philadelphia. Those making the trip include the relay team of Evans, Sauer, Brust and Dunn, and Howard Spencer, who will defend his title in the high jump; Henry Rupp, hammer thrower, and Joe Beggs, javelin thrower. Evans, in addition to running in the relay, will compete in the 400-meter hurdles.

PRO-AMATEUR OPENER SET

By TOM BIRKS

The Hannastown Country Club will be the scene of the first pro-amateur tournament of the season on Monday, May 22, when the members of the paid brigade will be guests of President Jamison, it was learned today.

President Robert Smith, of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, and Secretary George Ormiston met with President Fred Brand, Davey McKay, and Vincent Eldred, of the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association, in an informal get-together at the Greensburg Country Club on Monday and drew up plans for the resumption this season of the popular pro-amateur affairs.

The booster committee at the Valley Heights Country Club is working hard to make next Saturday's party a huge success. All members are bringing prospective members for a round of golf and dinner. The nominal fee of $1 assures one of the largest crowds that ever played at Valley Heights.

Luther reported that the course is in fine shape.

Mrs. Cliff Meyer, chairman of the ladies' committee at the Highland Country Club, announces that the women's opening day will be held next Tuesday. A luncheon followed by golf will start off the season in an auspicious manner.

The women golfers at Shannopin also will launch their season on Tuesday. Mrs. F. D. Unkefer is chairman of the women's committee.

Charley Manning, the professional at Shannopin, reports two holes-in-one already this season. R. A. McDowell, one of Shannopin's left handers, dropped the little white pellet into the cup on No. 17, while J. W. Schott turned the trick on No. 4.

SEVERAL CLUBS EAGER TO GET INFIELDER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Although two or more Class AA clubs are hot on the trail of Third Baseman Bill Brubaker, Manager George Gibson, of the Pirates, is apt to hold tight to the big Californian right up to the deadline on inflated rosters. Gibson today realized he must cut three players off the roster by May 15, but he thinks the problem will help to regulate itself in the next three weeks.

Kansas City is especially eager for Brubaker's services and it has been hinted that the Toronto club is just as anxious to acquire the U. C. L. A. star. Tris Speaker, manager of the Blues, tried hard to cajole Gibby into leaving Bill in Kansas City while the Buccos sojourned there, but the Bucco pilot thinks charity should begin at home. He said:

GIBBY IN NO HURRY

"We must get within the player limit one month earlier than usual this year, so why should we endanger our own protection? I can readily see why Speaker is anxious to have Brubaker. Tris needs infielders, but the Pirates need their secondary strength right now and the way the roads are I will hold onto Bill until May 15."

Brubaker, in some respects, is more impressive than Pep Young, who has the call over the collegian. But Pep knows what it is all about, while Bill needs further training in the fundamentals.

One pitcher also is likely to leave the team for the summer under a Pittsburgh option. The team has 10 flingers at present, but no more than nine will be carried through the summer. So there is quite a battle raging among the several in the doubtful class.

ROSTER SHOWS 26.

The immediate baseball future of Infielder Howdy Groskloss hangs in the balance. Howdy is still in the Yale School of Medicine. The Buccos roster contains 26 players, including Groskloss. Only 23 may be carried after the deadline date.

The first battle of the two-game series between the Pirates and Cubs at Forbes Field yesterday was called off on account of cold weather. The game will be played off as part of a double-header on July 25.

Chilly Sauce

The diamond stars who journeyed to Homestead last night to take part in the Sun-Telegraph Trained Seals broadcast in the Leona Theater had a fine time. Cub stars were prominent on the rostrum and Capt. Pie Traynor, of the Pirates, took a bow and made a neat response.

Burleigh Grimes, Leo Hartnett and Trainer Andy Lotshaw, of the Grimm minstrels took the big playhouse by storm with their chronicles of the diamond. Grimes made a big hit with his recital on Traynor.

It was only a few days back that Pie beat Burleigh out of a victory by a diving stop. Grimes recalled the many times he and Pie went on hunting and fishing tours.

"I could have tipped over a boat and Pie is not a very good swimmer," mused Burleigh. "But if I had done that what a loss it would have been to the young lady who married him."

Babe Herman didn't make a speech, but he was given a big ovation as were Lonnie Warneke, great hurler, Stanley Hack and Dilley Campbell, two of Grimm's promising rookies. Lotshaw knocked some of the fans right out of their seats.

William E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates, was a featured speaker on account of his sentimental discourse of Honus Wagner. Miss Lois Miller, singing organist, sponsored the event.

ILLINOIS RING BILL SIGNED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 27.—(AP.)—Fifteen round boxing bouts, other than title matches, are legal in Illinois today.

Gov. Henry Horner signed a measure yesterday which was adopted with an emergency provision making it effective so that Chicago might have such fights during the world's fair.

The new statute removed restrictions which limited fights to 10 rounds unless a championship was at stake and increased the state's "take" on gross receipts from 10 to 15 per cent. The promoter's bond was reduced from $5,000 to $1,000.

TWO HURLERS TURN IN ONE-HIT GAMES

ROY PARMELEE, HILDEBRAND SHOW FORM

Associated Press.

Regardless of the quite logical explanation offered by Will Harridge, American League president, that the weather is to blame for all this remarkable early-season pitching this spring, the fact remains that the slab departments of the two major leagues are doing outstanding work against the chilled batters.

The latest addition to the list of April heroes are Leroy Parmelee, of the New York Giants, who has visited the major league several times only to be farmed out each season, and Oral Hildebrand, something of a veteran although he is only in his second season with the Cleveland Indians. They hurled one-hit games yesterday, each barely missing the no-hit hall of fame.

PARMELEE STRONG

Parmelee, who spent most of the 1932 season with Columbus in the American Association, winning 14 games and losing one, won his spurs in his first start of the campaign as he turned back the slugging Phillies, 3 to 1.

The only hit off Parmelee was a smash by Mickey Finn in the third inning. It went for a double when Johnny Vergez found it too hot to hold. An outfield fly and a wild pitch turned it into a run. Finn was the only Philly to reach second, although Parmelee handed out four walks.

Hildebrand came just about as close to a no-hit feat, but lost it when Art Scharein cracked out a snappy single. The Indians, however, had little trouble blanking the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 0, although they got only five blows off Lloyd Brown and none off Wally Hebert.

In support of the Harridge theory that cold, damp weather is responsible for such flinging feats, both these games, along with a four-hit job by Owen Carroll, of Brooklyn, which led to a 3-1 triumph over the Boston Braves, and a five-hit game by Silas Johnson, of Cincinnati, in beating St. Louis 2-1, came on a day when chilly weather reigned over major league territory.

The Chicago-Pittsburgh National League game and the New York-Philadelphia contest in the American were postponed because of cold and Washington and the Boston Red Sox were rained out.

CARROLL BEATS BRAVES

Carroll, pitching fine ball in his third start for the Dodgers, received some powerful aid from First Baseman Del Bissonette, who clouted a homer, a double and a single, driving in four runs. Leo Durocher, generally a weak hitter, backed Johnson with three straight hits, including the blow which started the winning rally in the ninth inning.

In the remaining game on the program, the Detroit Tigers went 11 innings to give the Chicago White Sox their fourth defeat of the season, 6 to 4. Detroit got to Sad Sam Jones in the seventh after being held to two hits in six frames, tied the count in the ninth and won out when Fox, Webb and Gehringer nicked Joe Heving for singles and Walker connected for a long fly in the eleventh.

Players' Riot, Two of Barred Stars

START OF FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT BETWEEN YANKEES AND SENATORS FOR WHICH THREE PLAYERS HAVE BEEN BANNED

COLLEGE SPORT CARD HEAVY

By JESS CARVER

There is so much up and doing, or about to be up and doing, along the good old collegiate front that this department is about to hang out the "Assistant Wanted" sign. The salary will be $50 per—perhaps.

Track—Penn relays, West Virginia-Waynesburg and Carnegie Tech-Western Reserve dual meets.

Golf—Penn State vs. Pitt here Saturday and, according to schedule, although it may be postponed, Carnegie Tech vs. the Dukes the same day.

RELAY TEAMS PICKED

Coach Carl Olsen, of the Pitt track and field squad, will take two relay teams to Philadelphia for the annual Penn Relays. The Panthers will be represented in the college mile relay, with Fred Kiger, Emmett McDonald, Jim Watkins and Bill Keller running and in the spring medley, with Kiger, Schlossburg, Jacobsen and Keller in action.

Geneva, the only other district college to be represented in the Quaker carnival, likely will have a squad of seven men on hand.

Outstanding among the entrants will be Howard Spencer, star high jumper who holds the relay record of 6 feet 5⅝ inches, established last year; Beggs, javelin thrower, who took fourth last year; Henry Rupp, runner-up in the hammer throw event in the conference last year; Robert Evans, 400 meter hurdles entrant; and the relay team, composed of Evans, Sauer, Dunn and Brust, a team which won the college one mile event last year.

OFFICIALS APPOINTED

Six local men will officiate at Pitt football games next fall, according to the announcement of officials for the Panther contests given out today. Three of the six will appear in two games, these being Dex Very, Cal Bolster and Russ Goodwin. The ones drawing one assignment are Al Slack, Dan Dougherty and Red Friesell.

Of special note is the appointment of the referee for the Pitt and Notre Dame game at South Bend. W. H. (Red) Friesell has drawn this assignment. The Pitt-Navy contest will be handled by Dex Very, as referee; E. C. Taggart, as umpire; G. H. Hoban, as linesman, and Cal Bolster, as field judge.

No outstanding performances were turned in yesterday by University of Pittsburgh athletes in the annual intramural track and field meet, held in the Pitt Stadium. Clise ran the mile in 4:36; Ericson went 13 feet in the pole vault; Kiger turned in a 23-second furlong and Barnum got 169 feet 10 inches in the javelin.

The Michigan State track squad, en route to the Penn Relays worked out in the Stadium for a brief spell yesterday. Coach Ralph Young, former Wash-Jeff fullback in the great Goodwin-Speigel-Fleming-Young backfield, had three teams in charge,

BUDDY MYER — BEN CHAPMAN

Stars of the Washington Senators and New York Yankees, whose clash precipitated the riot at the Washington baseball park, for which they have been suspended, along with Pitcher Earl Whitehill, of the Senators, pending a definite decision on their punishment. These are International News Photograph Service pictures.

LOCKHART WINS IN DOUBLES

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 27.—(AP.)—Play was confined mostly to doubles matches in the Hot Springs tennis tournament yesterday, but two of the singles exhibitions found the most favor with the galleries.

Lockhart and Bill Bragaw, of Orange, N. J., defeated Eddy Sheedy, of New York, and S. Wallis Merrihew, of New York, 6-4, 6-3.

Wilson, Davidson Gain Golf Final

Each reached the last round by defeating his opponent 5 up on the No. 2 course yesterday. Walter D. Hyatt, of Toledo, O., lost out as Wilson went out in 36 to take the 5 up lead, while Davidson eliminated Howard G. Phillips, of New York, with a 37 to the turn and 6 up.

LION VARSITIES PLAY ABROAD

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 27.—Penn State athletes began a wholesale exodus today to fill engagements for the week-end on other college fields. The track team will participate in the Penn Relay carnival at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, tomorrow and Saturday. The lacrosse team takes a trip to New York state for games with Hobart and Syracuse and the golfers go to Pittsburgh for a match with the Panther links squad.

With the tennis team idle this week, the only home events will be two ball games; the varsity meets St. Vincent Saturday afternoon while the freshmen open their schedule with Bellefonte Academy as the opposition.

BASEBALL RIOT PROBE OPENS

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—President Will Harridge, of the American League, who slapped indefinite suspensions on the three principals of the Washington baseball riot arrived here today to open an exhaustive investigation.

Buddy Myer and Earl Whitehill, of the Washington Senators and Ben Chapman, base stealing star for the Yankees, were handed indefinite suspensions after President Harridge held a long distance telephone conference with Umpires George Moriarty and Harry Geisel to get their versions of the big fight Tuesday.

Although President Harridge waved his big stick last year in fining Catcher Bill Dickey, of the Yankees, $1,000 and suspending him for 30 days for an attack on Carl Reynolds, of the Senators, the general impression was that he would be more lenient with the principals of the Washington fracas. Under a new league rule, adopted after the Dickey-Reynolds case, any player making an unwarranted assault on another was liable to the same penalty levied on Dickey. In Tuesday's riot, the fight seemed to be a case of two players, Myer and Chapman, who lost their heads. Whitehill, who is accused of starting the fight all over again with a taunt to Chapman as he was leaving the park, may be dealt with more severely than Myer and Chapman.

The flareup may result in the construction of different exits for the players at all American League parks. In most parks, players on home and visiting clubs are forced to enter and leave the field by the same dugout runways. Visiting players, it was pointed out, are left open for taunts as they pass on their way to the clubhouse from home club players.

That's the word of Tracey Cox, Indianapolis lightweight puncher, who arrived in town today for his 10-round main bout with Tony Herrera in the Arena on the North Side tomorrow night.

Cox has appeared here twice before, easily defeating Billy Holt, a welterweight, and Tony Falco, a lightweight, in bouts at the Arena. He had both on the verge of a knockout several times, but permitted them to go the route. As he explains it now, he was satisfied to win those bouts and not show too much stuff for fear of scaring off other opponents. He says he has been up against a shortage of foes in other spots and didn't want to make the same mistake here.

TONY SMART BOXER

In meeting Herrera, who also is due here today, Cox faces one of the smartest ring generals in the business. Tony can box, fight and punch and has a way of wearing down more rugged foes by mixing his attack to the head and body. His left hook to the body is a pip and his constant jabbing to the head confuses them and softens them up. By shifting from one spot to another he makes openings in the defense through which to drive home telling blows.

The fans are divided in their opinions of the outcome to the point where they have formed on partisan lines. There are those who believe the stocky Cox will hand Herrera the latter's first knockout defeat, and others who are just as positive that Tony will coast in with a victory. If Cox keeps his promise to open up and show something he has hidden in his other showings here it should be a great fight.

SNAPPY PRELIMS

Fritzie Zivic vs. Patsy Hennigan, a bout the promoters have been months in making; Harry Lennox vs. Scotty Scottan, Harry Weekly vs. Hebee Thomas and Sammy Paris vs. Johnny Warner.

CITY SCHOOL NETTERS MEET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

High school racqueteers hold the center of the local net stage this afternoon as stars of the city division of the Interscholastic Tennis Conference stage their 1933 competitive debut. Two contests grace the card, Westinghouse visiting Taylor Allderdice as Peabody loafs in Section I, while Allegheny Vocational jaunts to Carrick and Schenley stands aloof in Section II.

Coach Irvin's Allderdice host, in addition to embarking upon quest for the Panther flagon, which they missed in wind-up with Mount Lebanon last spring, are concerned with defense of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Trophy, symbolic of City titular honors, captured in 1932 by the hustling Squirrel Hill aspirants.

PREPS MEET ARNOLD

Meanwhile in the Suburban loop, Andy Smeaton's Duquesne Preppers, entertaining Arnold School on the Bluff in Section I, with Bellevue lifting the lid with the aid of an invading Crafton crew in Section II. The Section III slate calls for Wilkinsburg to trek to Munhall and for Swissvale to jaunt over to Turtle Creek.

The Carnegie Tech contingent of Coach B. F. Hoover inaugurated its campaign by battling Siverd's Dukes to a 4-4 tie on the Bluff asphalt courts yesterday. Capt. Rufus Hartig and Groves performed impressively for the Tartans by trimming Capt. Frank Casey and Joe Thompson, respectively, of the Red and Blue and by teaming later in doubles and rallying to account for Casey and Cliff Soisson.

SERANY VICTOR

Frank Serany landed his first varsity singles verdict for the Bluffites by nosing out Stuart Dueger, Skibo grid luminary, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Serany paired with Thompson to assure a deadlock for the Hillmen through a 6-4, 6-4 decision over the Plaid sophomores, Krey and Hollingsworth. Nick Maczkov, of Munhall, snared the third Carnegie man-to-man win, while Soisson and Bill Purcell annexed spirited tussles for Duquesne.

The summary:

Singles — Groves, Carnegie, defeated Thompson, Duquesne, 6-3, 6-4; Hartig, Carnegie, defeated Casey, Duquesne, 6-4, 7-5; Serany, Duquesne, defeated Dueger, Carnegie, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3; Soisson, Duquesne, defeated Krey, Carnegie, 7-5, 9-7; Purcell, Duquesne, defeated Hollingsworth, Carnegie, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2; Maczkov, Carnegie, defeated Getty, Duquesne, 6-4, 6-1.

Doubles—Hartig and Groves, Carnegie, defeated Casey and Soisson, Duquesne, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1; Thompson and Serany, Duquesne, defeated Krey and Hollingsworth, Carnegie, 6-4, 4-6; Purcell and Getty, Duquesne, vs. Maczkov and Goss, Carnegie, called off because of darkness.

STOCKS PAUSE AS DOLLAR RECOVERS

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Fresh strength in the American dollar, and the nearing of the inflation vote in the Senate, gave the stock market pause today.

Wall street was encouraged by the scattered but distinct signs of business pickup, but many traders were inclined to question the current high level of share prices in relation to earnings, pending a clearer outlook for business, and inflation. Trading dwindled to the lowest volume in several days.

Strength of the dollar in relation to sterling, together with the increase in the British exchange control fund, was interpreted in some quarters in Wall street as indicating that further depreciation of the dollar might well be prevented, and that efforts would be made to retain current relationships pending the outcome of the economic conference during the summer. Thus, inflationary influences upon prices from dollar depreciation, it was reasoned, might well be at an end.

Bankers here were inclined to the belief that Washington's inflation program would first be concentrated on open market operations of the Federal Reserve System. Some high banking quarters thought this course might be effective, and was least dangerous, but that it would take time.

The latest silver amendment to the inflation measure in the Senate brought temporary brisk speculative buying of the metal, but it ran into profit taking on the advance. Usually well-informed quarters here doubted that any effort would be made to remonetize silver, save through international agreement.

The break in Allied Chemical followed publication by the Stock Exchange of resolution to act on May 3 on a report of the committee on the stock list setting forth its inability over the past year to persuade the corporation to publish fuller information regarding its financial affairs. Allied Chemical has long been regarded as a sort of "mystery stock." The reduction in Consolidated Gas' dividend had been expected, but the cut to an an annual basis of $3.40 from $4, was less severe than some quarters had anticipated.

SILVER SPURTS IN LONDON

LONDON, April 27.—(AP.)—Silver took another upward turn today on the United States Senate amendment regarding coinage. Renewal of speculative buying caused a rise of 1 11-16 pence per ounce to 20 3-16.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Responding to the Senate vote in favor of free coinage, silver futures on the national metal exchange jumped about a cent an ounce in the early trading, but later gave up part of the gain under profit-taking.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The International Silver Company has advanced the prices on certain of its sterling lines between 5 per cent and 20 per cent.

DOLLAR'S RALLY CONTINUES

NEW YORK, April 27.—Unconfirmed reports from London that the British treasury and the New York Federal Reserve Bank had reached an agreement on exchange rates to minimize fluctuations brought a sharp rally in the dollar today.

The British pound sterling lost 7 cents at a cable rate of $3.73, while the French franc was off .04 of a cent at 4.32 cents. Dutch guilders and Swiss francs sagged around 1-5 of a cent each and Belgian belgas were easy. Canadian dollars and Japanese yens each yielded nearly a cent, while the Scandinavians, German marks, Italian lire and Spanish pesetas were soft.

Market Stimulates U. S. Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Bank clearings in the United States during the week ended April 26 rose $550,275,000 from the previous week to a total of $3,839,956,000, says the report of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. The decline from a year ago was 9.4 per cent.

The improvement represented largely a more favorable showing at New York, the agency said, for activity in the metropolitan financial markets increased bank settlements considerably.

'Auto Tire Supply Declines in March

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Total stocks of auto tire casings on April 1 were 12,162,000, according to estimates by the Department of Commerce. This is a drop of 2,274,000 from a year ago and a decline of 152,000 from the total on October 1, 1932.

Manufacturers' stocks totaled 5,811,000, against 7,902,000 a year ago.

RUMORS THICK IN CHAOTIC MARKET

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The stock market is giving us a fair picture of the state of the average man's mind with reference to business. It is chaotic. It is churning. It does not know where to go.

After a "jump adjustment" last week to allow for fears as to the dollar, the market has churned around without making progress. It stood yesterday just about where it was on Thursday the 20th.

It has overdiscounted any known depreciation in the dollar. Why shouldn't it go higher? What is to put it up?

AFFECTED BY DOLLAR

There is a considerable amount of "better feeling" among many people. What basis exists for this sentiment, aside from the fact that stocks themselves have risen? Most men would answer, commodity prices are up.

Why, then, are prices up? The answer is that the dollar is down! Prices have jumped in most cases, not because commodities are scarcer, or because they are wanted more, or because people's purchasing power has been increased, but because a dollar is considered to be worth only about 90 cents at the moment.

I know that beer has helped here and there. There has been a rebound from the "bank holiday" shutdown, and some belated seasonal gains in business. Most of the "better sentiment," however, is based on inflation prospects, or on the stock market itself.

RUMORS ABOUND

And what a market! One would think these were the days of 1929 again. Tips and rumors abound. The market "services" are advertising again. Pools are, working. Everywhere one hears "objections" announced. "They" are going to take that little stock up to 10 (or some other figure). Or "I am told" this little baby is going much higher.

Is all this characteristic of the chastened and sober beginning of a sustained bull market?

Look at the action of the market itself. At one moment it seems about to go through the roof. To the accompaniment of much rumor and advance notice, first the utilities and then the rails surge up as though nothing could stop them. But then what happens? They "run into stock," and they drop right back to where they started.

KEPT UP BY SHIFTS

No one knowns, but in my humble opinion, all this is not characteristic of "accumulation" or of a "consolidation range." The savings are too wide. The character of some of the more active stocks is not good. The appearance is that the market is kept up by running from one group to another.

This is much more easily understood as "distributive" churning. I say again that in these disturbed and abnormal times, no one can know, but one can at least realize that the market in the past 10 days looks more like a "distributive top" than a consolidation of gains for starting a new rise.

As to the inflation motif, I continue to doubt that it will apply. The dollar strengthened in foreign exchange yesterday. Bonds have been relatively strong, which would be hard to explain if the dollar were going to depreciate.

Now that Senator Carter Glass has announced his stand for sound money, the course of inflation measures will probably not be so smooth.

DANGER TO CREDIT

Finally, in the slowness of the sale of the new issue of government bonds among small investors, the administration can read the danger to government credit which is threatened.

So I suggest that it is best to stay away from this crazy stock market. It is in an extremely dangerous position, either way. I do not consider the inflation prospect good enough to outweigh the possibilities of reaction.

It seems impossible to consider stocks as an investment here, and speculation is extraordinary risky.

WEEKLY FOOD INDEX UP

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Dun & Bradstreet's weekly food index, for the week ended April 25, jumped to $1.73, a rise of 12 cents, or 7.4 per cent over the preceding week. This was the greatest weekly gain in this index since April, 1920.

This week's figure, it was pointed out, was also higher by 3.4 per cent than the corresponding week of last year, the first time the index has registered a gain over the preceding year since the week of June 20, 1929. The past week's rise has brought the index to 17.4 cent above the depression low of $1.49, reached on February 28, last.

Flour, grains, dairy products, livestock and provisions all contributed to the advance. Of the 31 items included in the index, 22 were higher, while only 2, prunes and sheep, were lower.

Insull Sales Unit Asks for Receiver

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP.)—Once a powerful agency for Insull Utilities securities, the firm of Insull, Son & Co., filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy. Dean Harry A. Bigelow, of the University of Chicago Law School, was appointed trustee in bankruptcy.

Included among debtors to the firm was Joseph P. Tumulty, once secretary to President Wilson. Attorneys said the company held his note for $140,899, dated February, 1930.

STREET SHIFTS WITH NEW ECONOMICS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The paradox of the prevailing financial situation lies in the fact that a trading attitude is needed to assure investment safety.

Mr. Rukeyser

In ordinary times, switching is inadvisable for the true investor, who is primarily interested in conservation of capital rather than appreciation. But at this juncture of quickened change it is the part of prudence to examine all investment portfolios in the light of impending economic changes and prospects.

Until the course which the country will pursue in regard to monetary policy and economic rehabilitation and social control is clearer, investment decisions must be tentative rather than final. And, although rash folk will stake all on their hunches about future trends, experienced investors will hedge against the various reasonable expectations. To the extent that the dollar is to be cheapened, common stocks deserve consideration from a fresh viewpoint, but they are not the only vehicles which will benefit from economic recovery. Second and third grade bonds will also improve as corporate earnings rise.

SEES IMPROVEMENT

An economic adviser of an important industrial group, in urging temperance in regard to new legislation and economic relief schemes, cites the subjoined points which he feels are evidences of spontaneous economic improvement:

1—Factory unemployment is no higher than at the middle of last year, and in the interim there has been some improvement.

2—Industrial production in general is at present slightly above the low point of last summer, and during the past eight or nine months has averaged somewhat higher.

3—Although the prices of many finished goods have continued to decline, as is customary during the tail end of a depression, yet many of the most important raw materials have shown recent improvement and are in general little lower in price than nine or ten months ago. Prices in general for some time seem to have been approaching reasonable stability.

PRAISES ROOSEVELT

4—The prices of both stocks and bonds, according to the best indices, have held for many months very substantially above the low point reached early last summer.

5—We feel that businessmen in general are facing realities as never before, and are endeavoring to make the most effective use of the facilities at their disposal. Also debtors and creditors are now rapidly making rational readjustments with a view to planning ahead for the future on a sound and realistic base.

6—We believe, also, that the banking situation, notwithstanding recent unpleasant developments, is now fundamentally better than for a long time past, and we believe that the public can now have confidence in those institutions which the national government has permitted to open.

7—Finally, above all else we are encouraged by the splendidly comprehensive, effective and nonpolitical attack which the administration has made upon unwarranted and unnecessary federal expenditures. No higher service could possibly have been rendered to all the people by any President, and we sincerely trust that the example set by Washington will be vigorously followed by our state and local governments as paving the way to sound business recovery.

'Constitutional' Selling Seen as Source of Larger Blocks

Reports in some quarters of the street indicated that sizeable blocks of stock have begun to appear for sale at levels slightly under the prevailing range. The sources of such selling are cloaked in a bit of mystery. But the general belief is that such offerings probably indicate the disposition of certain institutional sources, such as fire insurance companies to dispose some parts of their portfolio at current attractive levels. These offerings, however, are apparently not of a pressing nature and there is no evident disposition to push the stock at the expense of values.

News of the reduction to a $3.40 basis for Consolidated Gas, coming late in the noon hour, proved to have been rather liberally discounted marketwise. At least the stock, which had experienced some professional pressure during the forenoon, rallied smartly with the news out, evidently on covering by disappointed bear traders. The action itself was fully expected, and warranted, as the quarterly report indicated.

Considerable selling came into Allied Chemical at the opening. Liquidation here was undoubtedly the result of nervousness generated by overnight developments involving the company. The move by the stock exchange to force the company to provide more informative reports for its shareholders came after a long seige of unsuccessful negotiation to bring that end about without drastic action.

The real bone of contention over a period of several years has been the item carried in current assets as "investments" consisting of U. S. government and other marketable securities. These have been carried at cost, admittedly above the prevailing market levels, with the difference between the two levels provided for by contingent reserves, according to the company. The stock exchange, among other things, wants to know what part of such reserves would have been required to bring such investments down to actual market, and what further part if any would have been required to properly reflect shrinkage in other current assets at that time.

Heavy buying of American Metal Company common and preferred stocks was a feature of the metal group on the stock exchange today. Both issues went into new high ground for the year. The fact that the company benefits from the recent advance in silver prices has been an important factor in the securities' rise.

Mahoning Valley Steel mill payrolls during April are likely to be $200,000 higher than in March as a result of the record upswing in steel output. More than 15,000 men have received an average of one more day's work each week this month than last in valley blast furnaces, etc. Prospects that the present upswing in steel operations will continue are improving. Operations currently are 25 per cent of capacity, compared to 12 per cent a month ago. Mill managers are talking about 30 per cent operations by June 1.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Federated Department Stores, Inc., for the year ended January 31 reports consolidated net profit was $566,056 after preferred dividends on subsidiaries, equivalent to 42 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $1,246,594 or $1.37 a share in the preceding fiscal year.

Baldwin Locomotive Works and subsidiaries report for 12 months ended March 31 last, showed net loss of $4,080,571 after depreciation, taxes, interest and other charges, against net loss of $4,426,895 in 12 months ended March 31, 1932.

A. M. Byers Company and Orient Coal and Coke Company report for the March quarter shows net deficit of $3,226,214, after depreciation, amortization and taxes, compared with net deficit of $285,043 in the previous quarter.

American Machine and Metals Company reports nine March quarter net loss of $388 compared with net loss of $113,789 in the same period last year.

Westinghouse Air Brake and subsidiary companies report for three months ended March 31 1933, net earnings, after depreciation and taxes of $17,290. This compares with $379,594 in the March, 1932, quarter.

Air Reduction Company reports March quarter net profit of $379,437 against $652,214 in the same 1932 period.

Commonwealth Edison Company earnings were $1.33 a share in the first three months this year, as compared with $2.42 for the first quarter last year.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company reports net earnings for the first quarter of 1933, after taxes, depreciation and interest of $3,452,723, equal after preference dividends to $1.23 a share on 1,800,000 shares of common. This compares with net of $3,927,678 in the like 1932 period, or $1.49 a common share.

ROPER REPORTS TRADE PICKUP

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—A steady pickup in business since the latter part of March was reported by Secretary Roper, with preliminary data for April indicating that activity in both production and distribution has been higher than during last month.

Steel production for the most recent week reported, the secretary said, had advanced to the highest point of the year, equal to the operating rate in the corresponding week of 1932. Automobile production increased, and Roper expressed a belief that final figures for the month would be substantially higher than in March.

Lumber and electric power production, among other indicators, were said to have advanced, while retail trade has picked up to an extent that the secretary believes the April compar

Poor Banking To Oppose Use Of Advertising

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

BUSINESS MAN after business man has complained to me that their bankers—in some instances, banking directors—have uncompromisingly opposed the spending of money on advertising.

THE CONCLUSION is impelled that most bankers are not the brainy stalwarts formerly imagined.

Their hostility to spending advertising money in order to make money is entirely in line with the policy they applied so drastically to their own business. Deflation — bankers called it liquidity—became their fetich. Retrench, retrench, retrench was their dominating objective.

What happened?

The screws were applied to all classes of borrowers. Infinitely more existent loans were abolished than new ones granted. By cutting down their volume of business, the banks could and did cut down their own working forces inordinately. Some institutions finally became little more than vaults for the storage of cash.

DID AMERICA'S banks demonstrate to business, to industry and everybody else how to operate farsightedly, profitably, successfully?

The banking business was the only one in the whole land that had to close down completely!

This being so, are bankers, as a class, entitled to dictate to other business men how to run their organizations?

SUPPOSE THEY succeeded in imposing their antiquated ideas on all business enterprises, and suppose that all the vast amount of selling promulgated by advertising, were to cease, what would be the consequences?

Admittedly, many advertisers, especially very large advertisers, could "conserve" cash temporarily. They could imitate the banks in cutting down their working forces. They could imitate the banks in "strengthening" their immediate cash position.

But wouldn't the logical finale of such a nationwide policy prove quite as suicidal as did the policy pursued by so many banks?

If business and industry, as a whole, were to follow the banks' example, the cost would not only prove perilous, but probably prove fatal to our whole economic and social structure.

SELF-PRESERVATION at this juncture demands, not worse and worse deflation, not more and more dismissals of employes, not abandoning efforts to expand business.

The time has come for expansion rather than further contraction, for striving to encourage rather than discourage normal activity, for increasing rather than decreasing sales efforts, for doing everything possible to revive optimism rather than aggravate pessimism.

Advertising can and should and must play an important role if the supreme aim of the nation, the restoration of employment and prosperity, is to be attained.

The Artist and Advertiser aptly observes:

"Would the banker advise the farmer, whose mortgage he held, to discontinue fertilizing his fields? Yet advertising, as a fertilizer of markets, is as important to sales development as nitrogen in the soil is to continued crop yield.

"Would a professional man on a board of directors curtail the use of the modern machinery necessary to turn raw stock into finished goods? Yet advertising takes the raw materials of utility, quality and price and transforms them into public goodwill and sales."

PERHAPS IT is not without profound significance that there is more universal, more insistent, more vehement demand for drastic reform of banking than for the reform of any other profession, business or industry.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

In any golf championship or important golfing event, it is a natural tendency on the part of any golfer to permit his muscles to become taut, and, in other words, tighten up. This is one of the most poisonous things that can happen to anybody. The great stars of the game are great because they are able to relax under the most strenuous conditions, and, therefore, never are groping around wondering what is the matter.

As long ago as 1914, I learned a fine lesson insofar as tightening up was concerned. It was in the second round of the British Amateur championship, and my opponent was a chap named Tubbs. Jerry Travers had gone down to defeat in the first round at the hands of an elderly chap named Palmer in what was a most surprising affair, and no doubt Travers' downfall had some affect upon me because I was more than anxious to play well to retrieve, if possible, his defeat. However, I was so nervous I could not hold the club properly, and, although my opponent gave me plenty of opportunities to win holes and even win the match, I was so tightened up that I could do nothing, and consequently went down just as Travers had done.

Francis Ouimet

In reviewing the cause for my downfall, I came to the conclusion that it was due to nothing more or less than tightening up, and the thing to do in important matches was to eliminate this tendency as far as possible. After much experimenting and thought I decided that the proper thing to do was to cultivate a very light grip on the club and, the more important the event, the lighter would I grip. This was just the thing to do and it has helped me out of a number of tough golfing situations.

TIGHT GRIP WRONG

Two things happen when you grip tightly—one is that the club head is rushed back at such a speed that it is impossible to get it around in time to meet the ball at the proper moment. Consequently the tight grip and the fast back swing are mainly responsible for taking one's eye from the ball. The only time you can successfully keep your eye on the ball is when your back swing has worked slowly and in harmony with the foot and hip pivot. If one gets out of gear, anxiety as to where the ball is going does the rest and long before the ball is met the head is lifted and the eyes are gazing off into space trying to pick out a ball which actually has not left the tee.

Furthermore, in iron play, it is just as essential to grip the club lightly when the pressure is great because the player himself will unconsciously grip firmly enough at the moment of impact to get the maximum distance or best results out of his shot. It is a mistaken theory, in my opinion, that a club should be squeezed in playing an iron shot.

JONES AN EXAMPLE

One reason for the consistent success of Bobby Jones can be attributed to the evenness with which his swing has been grooved, and the fundamental behind that, I think, is the grip itself. The impression I got from watching the play of Bobby Jones was that he gripped the club lightly, and for that reason he was able to have a uniform and well controlled back swing. Certainly the results he obtained would indicate that this theory was so.

I am sure that the stars of the game have mastered the art of relaxation and because they can relax and not tighten up is the main reason why they score well and perform brilliantly in every event practically that they enter. Certainly the headliners like Sarazen, Runyan, Dutra, Horton Smith, Hagen and others are able to perform at their best under pressure, and relaxation combined with concentration is the chief factor in every case, as I see it.

COE SELECTS DERBY COLTS

DERBY WORKOUTS

Associated Press.

Sarada (F. A. Griffith)—Won mile and 70-yard race in 1:42 3-5, at Havre De Grace.

Utopian (Mrs. H. C. Phipps)—Finished third, a length and half back of Sarada.

Also rans in Sarada race—Repaid, Crowning Glory, The Darb and Kerry Patch.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 27.—(AP.)—Ladysman, Pomponius and Pompoleon, W. R. Coe's entries for the Kentucky Derby, will leave Baltimore Tuesday for the blue grass classic to be run May 6.

The announcement was made by John H. (Buddy) Stotler, of Baltimore, the horses' trainer, who said three other eligibles under his care would not be taken to Kentucky.

Ladysman, son of Pompey and Lady Belle, is one of the leading contenders for the $50,000 racing feature. Stotler indicated the Coe colt would not race in the $7,500 Chesapeake Stakes here Saturday. Yesterday the horse went the mile and a quarter in 2 minutes 13 seconds, doing the last eighth in 11 4-5 seconds.

The three Stotler-trained horses to be left behind are Coe's Pomposity, the Sagamore stable's Parity and Wave On. Wave On went wrong in his training for the spring season, bowing slightly in the right foreleg.

FINGAL IMPRESSIVE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27.—(AP.)—Fingal, the only E. H. Bradley Kentucky Derby entry whose name does not begin with "B," was given a workout over Churchill Downs track here today and turned in the best performance of the morning.

His time for the mile and an eighth, 1:57 2-5, was 4-5 of a second slower than that made late yesterday by Broker's Tip, at present considered Bradley's best bet, but was better than that made by the three others from the Idle Hour Farm yesterday.

Mrs. A. M. Creech's Interpreter worked a mile in 1:44 1-5 with Jockey M. Parke up, being clocked at the quarter in :25 1-5, half, in :50 4-5 and three-quarters in 1:17 2-5.

L. M. Severson's Spicson, which ran second in the Louisiana Derby, covered a mile and an eighth in 1:57 3-5.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

The Baker's apartment was made up of four small rooms on the third floor of the building. Sharlie realized, the minute she put her foot over the threshold, that she never had seen any rooms like them.

The living room floor was covered with very thick soft gray carpet and the chairs and the two couches that flanked the fireplace were green-gray brocade. The curtains were green and silver and the lamp-light and firelight shone on silver picture frames, silver cigaret boxes and reflected itself from a great mirror above the pink roses on a low table between the windows and on each window sill was a pale green wicker box filled with primroses.

Beyond, in the little dining room, Sharlie caught sight of a heavy silver coffee service on the sideboard and another bowl of pale pink roses in the middle of the round table. The whole place spoke of luxury and money as well as good taste.

But what were people with furniture like this doing on the third floor of a second-rate apartment house, she wondered as Jim introduced her to them.

Mr. Baker was tall and quiet and very good-looking. He looked enough like Jim to be his brother, thought Sharlie. And Mrs. Baker was slender and brown-haired and blue-eyed.

Even before she spoke and shook hands with Sharlie, Sharlie knew that she was what Eddie Wallis called "class."

Her husband and Jim began to talk at once about a prize fight that the Legion was planning for the next month, and as she sat back in her own couch corner and pretended to listen, Sharlie studied Mrs. Baker ... What was there about her that gave that impression of breeding and charm?

MAKES DECISION

It was women like her, thought Sharlie, that Mr. Collins was probably used to in the life that he lived after office hours. Soft-voiced women who wore no makeup or so little that it did not show. Who knew how to put people at their ease, just as Mrs. Baker had put her at her ease, with just the right sort of smile and two or three pleasant little words. Who knew how to do their hair so that they looked fashionable without having the stiff artificial look that a beauty shop marcel wave gives almost always.

"Tomorrow," she decided, "I'll get some pearl beads like those and a plain dark dress for the office." She would stand out among the other girls in the office, not because she was smarter-looking than they, but because she was dressed more quietly.

"Nice place you have here," she heard Jim saying. He was looking around the beautifully furnished little room.

"My wife's people did the whole place for us while we were away on our honeymoon," said Mr. Baker. "All we had to do was to move in with our clothes and our wedding presents."

SEES KITCHEN

"Pretty soft for you," Jim answered. "A lot of us could get married if our folks would fix us up like this." And Sharlie felt the eyes of both the Bakers on her as if they were wondering if she were engaged to Jim.

Presently Mr. Baker went out into the kitchen with Jim and came back in a few minutes with a huge silver tray loaded with small silver goblets, a silver bowl of potato chips and another bowl of big black ripe olives. As the kitchen door swung open and shut Sharlie had a glimpse of a white-tiled wall, a sparkling white sink and a red-tiled floor . . . a dream kitchen. A bride's kitchen. And for an instant she half-wished that she and Jim were married and lived just across the hall or on the floor below . . . It must be fun to be part of a group of young married couples living in an apartment house like this. Playing cards together, running up and down stairs to borrow a cup of butter or an egg or a tack hammer.

Only Jim Barnum could not afford a place like this for years. He'd always have his mother and sister to consider, too . . . No use even thinking about Jim. Besides her mind was all made up to marry Mr. Collins if she could. But the bright vision of life with him had faded a little since she had come up the stairs to the Baker's apartment.

"Have some orange juice?" Mr. Baker asked her and she laughed up at him as she took one of the little silver goblets. There would be a cocktail in it, of course.

She sipped it. It was plain orange juice.

"I hope you boys didn't splash up my kitchen with your orange juice," Mrs. Baker was saying to them. Then she turned to Sharlie. "I do every bit of my housework, myself, and that kitchen is the pride of my life . . . How about a little game of contract?"

PLAYS NEW GAME

"Contract bridge?" asked Sharlie. "I'm sorry. I don't know how to play." If it had been poker, now, or dice . . .

"We have a grand little game that we call 'Horses,'" said Mrs. Baker. "We play it on a board that we made, ourselves, on the top of a bridge table. It's a lot of fun."

At the end of the evening Mrs. Baker took Sharlie into the bedroom where her coat lay spread across one of the snowy twin beds. Mrs. Baker's dressing table was a long low one that all but filled one wall of the room. It was covered with silver toilet things . . . two hair brushes, a clothes brush, a whisk broom, a whole crystal tray of little silver implements for manicuring. But there was only one box of white face powder on it and a tall silver-topped bottle of lavendar water. There wasn't a bottle of real perfume, a box of rouge or a single lipstick in sight.

"They're nice people, aren't they?" Jim asked when they were out in the dark street, getting into the car.

PARENTS WEALTHY

"Lovely," said Sharlie. "The girl is the most fascinating looking thing I ever saw. Jim, I don't believe she wears a bit of makeup except some powder. I believe that's her color."

"She certainly looks 'big time,' doesn't she?" Jim agreed. "A lot of these high-brow people don't look like anybody, but she does . . . You know who her folks are, don't you? The Fillinghams that have that big white house out on the Dawley pike . . . the place we've always been so crazy about."

Vaguely Sharlie knew that the Fillinghams were an old and very wealthy family. She had seen their beautiful old house many times when she was out driving with Jim, and she had seen their name in the society news of the papers all her life.

"It must be terrible hard for a girl like her to have to do her own work," she said slowly. "She must have been used to all kinds of servants."

Jim turned the corner of the street neatly. "A lot of these young couples, whose folks have money, start out just the way the Bakers have," he said. "I imagine they enjoy it . . . having to struggle a little bit. The Bakers seem to be having a pretty good time."

HAPPY WITH JIM

Sharlie never had liked him as much as she did just at that moment. He seemed to belong to her . . . and the two of them seemed somehow to belong to the same class that the young Bakers belonged to. The young people who don't mind a struggle because they are in love with each other. She knew, for that moment, that she would probably never know what complete happiness was if she married Mr. Collins . . . To think she could marry him had been absurd. Why, a man like him must meet dozens of lovely girls and women all the time. Girls like Mrs. Baker. Girls who were absolutely correct and utterly lovely in every way because their life-long training and care had made them so . . . If Jim Barnum had asked her to marry him then she would have said Yes without a second's hesitation. But he didn't . . . and the moment slipped away into another moment.

* * *

It was the fifteenth of October before Mr. Collins came back from his trip. He had driven home and he had stopped off at two or three different places, according to Edna who knew all his business as usual.

He came back very tan and healthy looking, and before he had been in the office two hours Sharlies was just as infatuated with him as she ever had been.

GRAND CANYON NATIONAL PARK, ARIZONA

The 1009 square miles area include 56 miles of the Grand Canyon, the greatest example of erosion and the most sublime spectacle in the world, stretching west of the mouth of the Marble Canyon. The Colorado River, 4 to 18 miles wide, winds for 105 miles through the park.

East lies the Painted Desert, west the broad Havasu Canyon, in whose depths we find the Havasupai Indian Reservation and picturesque waterfalls.

THE BAROMETER

One commonly employed form is shown consisting of a closed glass pipe bent in hook shape at its lower open end and containing mercury. Between the upper level of the mercury (A) and the closed end of the pipe (top) is vacuum. The difference between the upper and lower levels (A-B) of the mercury, read on the scale, shows the pressure (P) of the atmosphere at the prevailing temperature t indicated by the thermometer nearby. For 0° C. the correct pressure p = P (1-0.0001818t). (Foster: Elements of Chemistry.) In issue of April 25, line 26 under "Temperature Scales" should be eliminated.

FRUITS (Foods)

(Left and right): Fruits are rich in carbohydrates and mineral matter. The former are largely in form of sugar. Mineral matter includes ash, compounds of calcium, magnesium, potassium, phosphorus and iron. The cellulose and acids of the fruits have laxative properties. Fruits are a necessary part of our diet and no extravagance. Artificially dried fruits are to be preferred to cheap (spotted and bruised) fresh ones.

SIMPLE STEAM ENGINE WITH SLIDE VALVE

The stationary parts: Frame, bed or base, cylinder, cylinder heads, steam-chest cover, bearings, stuffing box and valve stem guide. Moving parts: Piston, piston rod, crosshead, connecting rod, crank, shaft, flywheel, governor and the valve gear (composed of eccentric rod, valve stem and valve); all these are moved by the action of the steam. (Compare with the Corliss engine shown in issue of April 6, 1933). The main requirements of any steam valve: (1) steam must not be admitted to both ends of the cylinder at the same time; (2) exhaust should start earlier but never later than admission on the opposite side; (3) steam chest and exhaust port should be always separated by the valve. New York Climate Is Loose

The baseball season is back again and proves that spring is here when it's around.

That may sound like a postscript to nothing. But in the Middle Atlantic States a spring is either wound up too tight or it's too loose.

Down South and in California you can depend on your seasons by the calendar. Up here, spring has a habit of appearing and vanishing. One day the sun is shining, the birds are preening and the flowers are blooming. The next day you are up to your whiskers in all kinds of blizzards and the weather is so bad that quinine pills taste like rock candy.

That's why the April golfers leave their clubs home and take nothing along but changes of clothing. It is not unusual to see a New Yorker change from his summer to winter underwear right in the middle of Fifth avenue traffic.

That's why we never trust anything or anybody. That's why a New Yorker on his way to Paradise will carry his umbrella with him.

That's why we all have asthma, colds and Bronx kittens. That's why our noses stayed a bright red during 15 years of prohibition and that's why tears run down our cheeks even when Laurel and Hardy are on the screen.

Instead of the birds warbling the flowers start to whistle and winter after a slight interruption resumes its schedule as usual. Our climate is as dependable as a broker's advice over the telephone.

But it's ours and we have to make the most of it. The result is that nobody plans any picnics in advance even with the aid of the thermos bottle. Admiral Byrd has no prettier lawn parties at the North Pole than we can stage right on Long Island where nature is serene and only man is violent. Nine out of 10 New Yorkers have chronic neuritis and the tenth rubs their backs with oil of cloves and a mild mixture of Portland cement.

It's tough, erratic climate, but you can't do without it. We get to love it. And, like the monkey's child, while it ain't much to brag about, it is all our own.

Scotch This Snake!

The Business Racketeer Rears His Ugly Head in Pittsburgh in the Attacks on Barber Shops.

The business racketeer who by violence and terrorism dictates prices and policies and extorts protection money has gained a foothold in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities.

Pittsburgh has been fairly free from this menace until lately. Now it has made its appearance among us in the attacks on barber shops.

A bomb was set off yesterday in a barber shop at Arch and West Ohio street, North Side, because, it is alleged, of the proprietor's opposition to a demand that he raise prices. There have been a number of other such outrages, and in every case the proprietor of the damaged shop had refused to submit to dictation.

This is the way the business racketeer starts operations. The next step, after the barbers have been cowed into submission, would be to demand money for protection.

A Juicy Plum

"Rich Pickings" Are in Store for the County Delinquent Tax Collector.

The unpaid delinquent taxes in the hands of the County Delinquent Tax Collector at the close of last year amounted to $8,021,383.39, and it is expected that about $4,500,000 of county taxes will become delinquent this year.

The Allegheny County League of Women Voters calls attention in an open letter to the probability that when business conditions improve a large increase in tax collections will result.

"On the basis of such increased collections," the league says, "even if the Collector's fee is reduced from 10 per cent to 5 per cent, his commissions will be very substantial."

An idea of how substantial they may be can be formed from consideration of the fact that in 1931, when the amount of unpaid delinquent taxes was $5,063,549.25, the Collector's net commissions, after payment of all salaries and other expenses, totaled $106,265.18.

Philadelphia abolished the fee system for the collection of delinquent taxes in 1884, and Pittsburgh abolished it about 1912.

The Legislature, servile to Senator James J. Coyne, has refused to abolish the system for Allegheny County, and the people in consequence are to turn over to the County Delinquent Tax Collector hundreds of thousands of dollars that should go into the county treasury.

Coyne's refusal to permit this saving is one of the worst things in his record.

If relief is not obtained from the Legislature in the meanwhile the voters of Allegheny County should demand of candidates for County Treasurer hereafter that they pledge themselves not to appoint a Delinquent Tax Collector without exacting a promise to return to the county treasury all commissions above an amount equivalent to a reasonable salary.

A Contrast

Brooklyn's Experience Suggests That Pittsburgh Is Paying Too Much for Rubbish Removal.

"Last year the Brooklyn Ash Removal Company, which has handled the disposal of garbage, ashes and waste in the Borough of Brooklyn until the award of the new contract to Samuel Rosoff, paid the city $48,000—at the rate of $4,000 a month—simply for the privilege of 'picking' the rubbish. Brooklyn's bottles, second-hand bedsprings and last year's newspapers were worth that much and more, the company found."

Pittsburgh last year received nothing for its garbage and rubbish, but paid $1,580,469.94 to have it removed.

We paid the American Reduction Company $475,101.12 for removing 72,204 tons of garbage, and $779,525.21 for removing 99,684 tons of rubbish. We paid the Allegheny Garbage Company $161,574.23 for removing 20,324 tons of garbage on the North Side, and $164,269.38 for removing 23,400 tons of rubbish in that section of the city.

This year we have appropriated $1,350,000 for garbage and rubbish removal, and have contracted to pay the American Reduction Company $6.58 a ton for the removal of garbage and $6.80 a ton for the removal of rubbish, and the Allegheny Garbage Company $5.25 a ton for the removal of garbage and $5.45 a ton for the removal of rubbish.

A long-term contract, which would permit competition, would result in lower bids and a saving of money.

And if rubbish has the salvage value indicated by Brooklyn's experience, Pittsburgh is squandering the taxpayers' money inexcusably under the present system.

The Opening Wedge

The People Will Sanction Sunday Baseball, and That Will Lead to Repeal of the Blue Law.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has approved the Schwartz bill which authorizes Sunday baseball and football in municipalities that give their assent in a referendum to be held on November 7.

The Legislature would have done well to repeal the blue law altogether and let the people attend movies and indulge in every other kind of innocent amusement on Sunday.

However, the Schwartz act is the opening wedge, and we look for the liberalizing of the Sunday laws in respect to other things besides athletic games within a few years.

If the postcard poll taken by the Sun-Telegraph a few years ago affords an accurate criterion—and we are confident it does—the people of most Pennsylvania communities will vote next November in favor of Sunday sports.

The succeeding Legislature, thus shown how public opinion runs, will have no further misgivings about repealing the blue law.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Melody of Life

Song drifts about us, everywhere,
In desert ways and forest dells
And in the moving sea and air
It weaves its changeful spells.

The night wind stirs the poplar leaves
And whispers through the tulip tree;
Like some small, restless ghost it grieves.
In wistful melody.

From every blade of grass there comes
A shrill insistent note of song
From insect life that drones and drums
And whistles, summer long.

While those innumerable throats
Are voicing fleeting melody,
Forever sounds in mighty notes
The solemn music of the sea.

To song our days are ever set,
Its currents flow about us, rife;
It rings through rapture and regret,
The ceaseless melody of life!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 27.—It has been interesting to re-discover Brooklyn this Spring. It blooms with its flowers and stresses that so much of Manhattan's squirrel-in-the-cage living is irrelevant. Many transplanted New Yorkers declare they never began to enjoy living until they crossed the bridge.

A large number, hypnotized by the metropolitan haphazardy, look upon Brooklyn in the manner of an unwanted step-child. It is seen best in the twilight that trembles in a pale gold shimmer. The bristle of church spires adds to the profound humility.

Quiet residential streets are blanched in a sort of frozen purity and there is an incurable passion for domesticity. People on porches exchange greetings with passers-by. Nowhere is the sudden fury to get somewhere. Thackeray was likely thinking of another Brooklyn when he wrote of "settled sobriety."

One of the largest cities, it's still country. And aristocratic Brooklyn Heights has no suggestion of nouveau riche invasion so loudly tom-tommed on Fifth and Park avenues. There is rather the marked contagion of immaculate piety, delicate taste and dependability.

Cling of customs is warming. I like the tale Reggie Birch, artist creator of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," tells of boyhood with his grandfather, retired British admiral, with Nelson at Trafalgar. Every evening at dinner in the London mansion several maiden aunts left the dining room when the cloth was lifted and Reggie, aged 6, and his gaffer grandfather would be left alone. The butler would brim a glass of port for the old gentleman and a tiny liqueur for the young master who, standing on a stool, would solemnly pipe, "The Queen, Sir, God Bless her," when the ancient admiral proposed her Majesty's health.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Bet you can't think about one subject steadily for three whole minutes! Probably not for two! Possibly not for even one!

You laugh.

"What a silly wager!" you say. "Of course I can. Why, I could think about a subject that interests me for an hour, if I wished!"

Is that your idea?

All right—go ahead. Try!

You think. I'll count. Seconds.

One . . . two . . . three . . . four . . .

You're looking triumphant. "Can't think steadily, huh?" You'll show me! For four whole seconds you've been thinking, steady as a clock—about your girl, or your new dress, or your job. Didn't you say you'd show me!

Very well; that's jake. But go ahead!

Well, you hate to admit it, and you're sure it's just an accident—but you'll have to confess the old bean did skid a bit. In fact, it hopped the track entirely. There you were, thinking about one thing right along without a waver, and all of a sudden—bam! You found yourself thinking of something else. But you're sure you won't do it again!

Yeah??? Well, here's another chance to prove it. Ready? Then let's go!

Daggonit! What's wrong? You feel like thirty cents! You'duv sworn you could do it—but you can't! No use trying again. You've gone the limit. But you simply CAN'T think steady about ANY ONE THING for three minutes!

Why, instead of thinking of ONE thing, you've thought of fifty in the last five seconds. A regular grasshopper—that's what you turned out to be!

All these years you'd been boasting about your "power of concentration," and sneering at fussy-minded fools who could never stick to one subject—but now, look at your record! Is YOUR face red!

NO ONE ON EARTH CAN THINK OF ONE SUBJECT STEADILY FOR THREE CONSECUTIVE MINUTES.

Does that mean that our brains are defective? It does not. It simply means that THINKING is still a comparatively new indoor sport for Mr. Homo Sap. As eaters and sleepers, as catch-as-catch-can lovers, we've been functioning for a long, long time. But only within the last few hundred thousand years have we started to GET BUSY ABOVE THE EARS—AND SOME OF US AREN'T HUSTLING MUCH EVEN YET.

Therefore you needn't blush if you can't think steadily on one subject for three minutes. The miracle is that we have started to think at all!

For we're all still half-baked—part fumbling monkey; part stumbling man—with a small, bright spark of God burning in the muddled mixture, welding it all into one.

So don't get discouraged with civilization because it's haywire or with your neighbor because he's a mess—or with yourself because your Intelligence Quota goes blah after thirteen seconds! Be patient. Be hopeful. Be tolerant.

We've done a pretty good job, considering. Pretty soon, as our brain muscles straighten and our powers of concentration tighten, we'll do a better one. Then we'll be able to hang on to our sense of justice and our love of honor for more than three minutes. Slowly but surely the fumbling will lessen and the stumbling will cease—and we'll live, straight and steady, as Men.

Ruffles DO Count

Mannish Girl's Clothes Will Never Drive Them Out.

PRETTIER THAN "MANNISH CLOTHES"

This pretty picture of an English moving picture star reminds American girls that merely "being FEMININE" has its charm, and one that will last forever.

Ruffles, dainty wreaths, curly, flowing hair, sentimental eyes upturned, soft arms and pleasant lines will continue to rule the world. Never doubt it.

Young ladies that think they would like to imitate certain moving picture stars and wear "coat, vest and pants" should ask themselves which would be more popular among men—a young girl dressed as this little girl is dressed or the same girl "coated, vested and panted."

THE 'BUTTERFLY'

By Winifred Black

Dear me, what a great time the nice, fluttery little butterfly had trying to be an eagle at the party the other day.

There were a lot of people at the party, some rather intelligent ones, too. A well-known lawyer, a great editor, and one of those persons we love to call a "financier"—especially if he calls us by our first names.

There were a couple of artists and there was a real poet, and there were quite a few good, hard working, honest enough businessmen.

Proud wives, and humiliated wives, smiling wives, and pouting wives, wives who wished they had never seen their husbands, and wives who wished their husbands would look at them once in a while, just to show the party that there was really nothing wrong, don't you know.

Oh yes, there was a singer, too—a young man with sleek hair, and large liquid eyes, and a voice that made you think of dotted muslin and a work basket full of sweet embroidery.

But the little butterfly was the liveliest of all.

She sat on a sofa in the middle of the room, and she "approved" of you, and your ideas—or she "disapproved," not only of your ideas, but of your shoes and your hat and the way you wore your hair.

She didn't say anything about these things, but you knew what she was thinking anyhow.

The butterfly knew all about the world's banking system. Her great friend the London banker had explained it to her.

It was really quite simple if you knew the right people, and just asked them a few plain questions about it.

She knew all about the doings in Europe. And she told us all about everybody and everything, and was so patronizing, it was really very nice.

"How the butterfly has changed," said one of the well-meaning wives in a whisper.

"Butterfly?" echoed a rather sullen wife, "why she isn't a butterfly any more, she's an eagle, or she wants to be.

"She's trying awfully hard to be nice and kind to everyday people like you and me."

"You and me?" said the well-meaning wife, a little coldly.

And it really was rather a mistake for the sullen wife to use that phrase. The well-meaning wife was writing new verse herself, and—

But it's really rather a pity about the butterfly, she was such a nice, gay little butterfly, and I'm afraid she won't be a violent success, as an eagle.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you one of those persons who wants to pin down minute details in every statement or explanation made by another person?

Do you constantly ask "why" and "how"?

Do you thus hinder the one who is talking till the main cause of the discussion is lost entirely in the mass of detail?

If you are that sort no wonder you have failed to make a success.

Those who cannot get a broad scope in thought and plan first and take up detail later, usually get lost in a maze of little things and get nowhere.

Or is it that you desire to argue every little point of a subject—especially the inconsequential ones—that makes you so persistent in quizzing?

Why not accept a general explanation of the subjects upon which you ask questions, unless, of course, you are sincere in your search for information that you do not possess.

Even if you are after knowledge in all its ramifications, you should have some consideration for the others who listen.

They may understand better than you and their thought is held up.
